U.S. Prepared to Use Force in Lebanon

Action to Preserve Freedom Conditional, Dulles Says

Washington — Secretary of State Dulles said today the United States would use military action under certain conditions to preserve Lebanon's independence.

Dulles told his news conference the U. S. 6th fleet in the Mediterranean is watching the crisis-ridden Lebanese situation.

He said fleet elements, including marines, could take appropriate action.

He said it may be necessary to enlarge this force and give it greater mobility.

Mentioning that U. N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld and a U. N. Security force are in the area, Dulles said any proposal by Hammarskjöld in this connection would be supported by the United States.

He added that this includes physical support.

Conditions Not Given

Dulles said there are other contingencies under which the United States might send military support to Lebanon. He declined to go into them, excusing himself from his news conference at that point on grounds he had to go to Washington's National airport to greet the arriving Philippine President Carlos P. Garcia.

On other points during the news conference, which Dulles had asked be limited to a half hour so he could welcome Garcia, the secretary said:

1. Russia apparently wanted to break off diplomatic talks with Big Three ambassadors on preparations for a possible summit conference. That, he said, in his inference from the Kremlin's disclosure yesterday of the hitherto secret papers of those meetings amid charges of heel-dragging by the west.

He would not predict whether a summit conference is possible this year. But he said the Soviets and the west are as far apart as ever in basic disagreement on what kind of heads of government meeting there should be.

The communists' execution of former Hungarian Premier Imre Nagy indicates another step in Soviet reversion toward brutal, terroristic methods practiced under Joseph Stalin. He said Soviet Premier Khrushchev rode to power by denouncing Stalin and now seems to be copying him.

Nagy's execution apparently was carried out by the Hungarian communists on orders from

Lebanon May Request UN Border Cordon

Wants to Keep Out Infiltrations From Syria and Gaza

Beirut — Heavy shooting broke out tonight in the rebel stronghold of Basta, inside Beirut. The firing lasted nearly an hour.

An eyewitness reported by telephone that the rebels were firing into the adjacent quarter of Mohzeleah, mainly inhabited by Christians.

Beirut, Lebanon — Lebanon will ask for a U. N. security cordon along the Syrian frontier and Mediterranean coast, a Beirut newspaper said today.

The usually reliable L'Orient said Lebanon will ask U. N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld to set up "a cordon of security to be installed all along the sea and land frontiers to keep out infiltrations of men and arms coming from Gaza and Syria."

Hammarskjöld is expected to arrive in Beirut tomorrow night. An advance U. N. team is here to check on arms smuggling but it has power only to report back to the U. N.

L'Orient did not disclose the source of its information and it could not be officially confirmed immediately.

Meantime the Lebanese cabinet was reported to have instructed Foreign Minister Charles Malik to ask for another U. N. meeting on Lebanon.

The U. N. Security council voted earlier this month to send the observer teams to Lebanon after hearing Lebanese charges of United Arab Republic interference in Lebanese affairs.

Rebel leaders voiced new threats of a full-scale civil war.

2 Policemen Confess Series of Robberies

Detroit — Two Detroit policemen used a variety of disguises ranging from army fatigues, the masked bandits who took $100,000 in 10 holdups of banks hunting clothes, rubber masks and savings and loan associations and sunglasses during the holdups.

Detroit Police Commissioner Edward S. Piggins said Patrolmen James R. Burke, 33, and David Tapp, 26, admitted the holdups and resigned from the department immediately.

It was the second time in less than a week that a Detroit policeman was nabbed as a bank robber. Patrolman Marmion S. Pollard, Jr., resigned last week after pleading guilty to two attempted bank robberies.

Police and FBI agents said there was no connection between the two sets of bank robberies.

Piggins said the arrests, which followed an anonymous tip two weeks ago, led to solution of the bank robberies which department in 1954, both have been cited several times for outstanding police work.

Red Action Called Warning Kremlin Means to be Tough; Predict New Blasts at Tito

BY RICHARD KASISCHKE

Vienna, Austria — The execution of Imre Nagy, one of Hungary's premiers during the 1956 revolt, provoked a wave of shock and surprise in Yugoslavia and the western world today.

Three of Nagy's aides died

Maletier Nagy

with him. Chief among these was Gen. Pal Maletier, arrested by the Russians while negotiating for withdrawal of all Russian forces from Hungary.

In Yugoslavia, experts on Soviet affairs predicted Moscow will use the case for new blasts against President Tito and as a clear warning to all satellites that the Kremlin means to be tough.

These experts expressed belief that Janos Kadar, communist boss in Hungary since Nagy's fall, was so implicated by the trial that he can no longer remain in power. He was a member of Nagy's revolt-tossed government at one time.

In Washington, Sen. Mike Mansfield (D-Mont.) said the executions showed Nikita Khrushchev, the Soviet boss, is "as brutal and ruthless as Stalin." Others expressed similar views.

Deserve Respect

Britain's foreign office said Nagy, Maletier and the others "deserve the respect of all mankind."

"Both have been tried and executed in secret without having been given any chance to state their case either to their own countrymen or to the rest of the world," the foreign office stated.

Socialist Robert Bratschi, speaker of the Swiss parliament, ment, said the executions opened a new gap between east and west. He said the Swiss people learned of them "with a feeling of absolute horror."

In Italy, Pietro Nenni, a Socialist who once renounced a Stalin peace prize in bitterness over the Hungarian revolt, declared he was stunned. He said

Test Indicated For Khrushchev

Communist Party Session Could be Critical for Leader

Paris — Diplomatic advances reaching here said the all-powerful central committee of the Soviet communist party opened an urgent session in Moscow today which could be critical for some of the policies of Premier Nikita Khrushchev.

The plenary session, the report said, was the most important with routine business beginning tomorrow.

Top subjects being taken up, the reports said, are all domestic—the most controversial for the party. Highest priority has been given to argument about the effect of Khrushchev-inspired decrees on the decentralization of industry and the turn-over of machine tractor stations (MTS) to the collective farms.

No Official Word

There was no word here that the committee would discuss such international problems as the crisis in Lebanon.

Informed sources emphasized that Khrushchev's position in the party has been affected even in regard to domestic questions because he has been unable to bring about a summit conference.

Not only is such a meeting—primarily with President Eisenhower—popular among the Russian masses but, these sources said, Khrushchev has been using its imminence to quiet opposition to domestic projects.

It is in this connection that well-informed sources regarded as important the Soviet publication of diplomatic notes they hoped would show western responsibility for lack of a summit conference.

The widow of George Kelly and Mrs. Ora Shannon, 70, had life sentences set aside yesterday and new trials ordered on their convictions in the sensational $200,000 kidnaping of millionaire Oklahoma City oilman Charles Urschel.

"Mr. Kelly was an atheist when I married him, I drifted from the church. But in prison, I returned. I thank God for this."

"Now," said Mrs. Kelly, 54, "I want to get a job in Oklahoma and take care of my mother."

Signing of the papers that released the women came late last night, nearly a quarter century after their conviction in the same courthouse. An aunt and a friend put up $40,000 in property, as required by federal law, for the $10,000 bonds set on each by U. S. District Judge W. R. Wallace.

Pay Raise Measure Sent to President

Washington — The house today passed and sent to the White House a bill giving a 10 percent pay raise to 1,021,000 civil service and other government workers. President Eisenhower is expected to sign it.

Labor Control Bill Debate In Fifth Day

3 or 4 Amendments Still Face Battle Before Final Vote

Washington — The senate heads into a fifth day of debate on the bitterly fought labor control bill today with final passage now in sight.

Senate Majority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Texas) said he knew of only three or four controversial amendments still to be acted on when the senate quit at 11:13 last night after struggling through a dozen amendments.

He conceded, however, that senators might think of more overnight.

Johnson abandoned plans to finish the bill last night after Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Ore) contended the senate was rushing to adopt ill-considered amendments.

Amendment Beaten

Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass), sponsor of the bill, lost his first floor fight on an amendment yesterday. But he suffered only the one defeat, and he and other backers of the bill appeared to be in position to keep it largely to their liking.

Over Kennedy's opposition, the senate voted 66-20 to require both employers and union officials to file non-Communist affidavits before they can use the services of the national labor relations board.

That amendment, by Sens. Karl E. Mundt (R-SD) and James O. Eastland (D-Miss), was substituted for a provision of the bill which would have repealed the present Taft-Hartley law requirement that union officials file such oaths.

The senate adopted an amendment by Sen. Sam J. Ervin, Jr. (D-NC) to permit union member to sue for recovery of money embezzled by an officer if the union's officers did not bring such a suit.

Payne Winner in Maine Primary

Portland, Maine — Sen. Frederick G. Payne, Republican, friend of the controversial Bernard Goldfine, was overwhelmingly renominated in Maine's primaries.

He and Gov. Edmund S. Muskie, unopposed on the Democratic primary ballot yesterday, will battle it out in the state's final early September election. In 1960, Maine joins a few states balloting in the airstrip. The impact shattered the plane.

Gave No Improper Favors, He States; White House Says Ike Got, Gave Away Cloth

Washington — Sherman Adams testified today that if he had had more experience "I believe I would have acted a little more prudently" in making inquiries on behalf of his friend and benefactor Bernard Goldfine.

President Eisenhower's top assistant — sometimes called the asstant president — pleaded too that "I am ignorant of the rules and regulations" when told that both the securities and exchange commission and the federal trade commission violated them in response to his inquiries about Goldfine's affairs.

In the witness chair of a house investigating committee, the president's top assistant had sworn he never did any improper favors for Goldfine, a Boston industrialist, who made gifts to him and President Eisenhower.

Subcommittee Counsel Robert Lishman said a law violation stemmed from a telephone inquiry Adams made in 1954 about an FTC investigation of a Goldfine mill for alleged misbranding of the content of a fabric.

As a result of the call, Lishman said, Goldfine learned the name of a complainant and also that the matter might be settled if the mill would agree to change its labels. He said that giving this information to Goldfine was in violation of law and regulations.

Adams replied: "So far as I am concerned, he got information supplied by the responsible official. I made no special request. I am ignorant of the rules and regulations of the commission. I had assumed quite obviously that what he got he was entitled to under rules and regulations."

Under questioning then, Adams testified that had he known of the rules "my decision might have been different" in intervening with the FTC for Goldfine.

Acknowledges Gifts

In earlier testimony, Adams had acknowledged he received a rug and a coat from Goldfine and let the textile magnate pay hotel bills for him in Boston, New York and Plymouth, Mass.

But he said the rug — which reputedly cost $2,400 — was only lent to him. Adams said he had checked and the coat material cost the industrialist's mill about $69.

The total of the hotel bills, as developed in testimony before the committee, was something in excess of $2,000.

Before Adams came before the committee, the White House had reported that Goldfine gave Eisenhower some vicuna material, but that the president gave it away.

As to his contacts with federal agencies in relation to Goldfine's affairs, Adams said they gave the industrialist no benefit "that he could not have received had he gone directly to the agency involved and he and I had been complete strangers."

Adams came before the committee with a 1,500-word statement, but frequently departed from a reading of it to fire off-the-cuff remarks.

Officials Helpful

In one of these, he tossed squarely back to congress the question whether an official who makes an inquiry or sets up an appointment for a friend is behaving improperly.

"Is there any member of this congress who has not made a phone call for a constituent?" Adams asked. "Is there any member of congress who has not made an appointment for some constituent who found himself concerned with some activity of the government?"

"Is there any member of congress willing to stand and say that by reason of that appointment or activity his vote

Efforts Renewed To Settle Maritime Strike

Talks of Marine Engineers, Ship Owners to Continue Today After 4-Hour Negotiations End in Failure

New York — Negotiators renew efforts today to settle a 2-day old strike of 1,700 marine engineers.

The strike eventually could halt 448 passenger and dry cargo ships operating out of east and Gulf coast ports.

Four hours of almost continuous negotiations between the Marine Engineers Beneficial association and shipowners ended in failure at midnight. The talks resume later today.

So far, the strike has had a relatively small effect. Twenty-eight dry cargo ships have been immobilized in the port of New York.

3 Disputes Settled

A strike of 10,000 oil tanker seamen was settled late yesterday. More than 125 ships—84 of them oil tankers—were caught in ports from New York to Mobile, Ala., early in the strike, which began at midnight Sunday.

Crews were instructed to sail after the tanker agreement was announced.

Two other strike-threatening disputes, one involving National Maritime Union seamen employed on the 448 passenger and dry cargo ships and the other involving radio operators on 280 of the same vessels, were settled without strikes.

A spokesman for the striking engineers' union said the major demands are:

Major Demands

An increase in pensions from $100 to $250 a month; 60 days of paid vacation a year instead of the current 28; a substantial wage increase, and improved employment security.

Present pay ranges from $943 to $1,052 a month.

Meanwhile, the engineers are

Secret Exchange Fails to Set Up Summit Meeting

Moscow Reveals Western Letters, Destroy Groundwork

Washington — The United States, Britain and France surveyed the wreckage today of their efforts to set up a summit conference through secret diplomacy.

Moscow blew them out of the water yesterday by making public a letter from Soviet Premier Khrushchev denouncing their attempt as needless foot-dragging.

The state department blasted back by publishing the west's major pre-summit proposals, hitherto kept secret.

Back To Beginning

When the smoke cleared, things were right back where they were two months ago, before Russia agreed to try it the west's way. Russia was demanding a heads of government meeting. The west was insisting on adequate preparations on lower levels first.

Secretary of State Dulles had a chance to comment at his news conference today.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko started things off in Moscow. He called in Ambassadors Llewellyn Thompson of the United States, Sir Patrick Reilly of Britain and Maurice Dejean of France. He told them he was making public Premier Khrushchev's June 11 letter to their government chiefs as well as other top secret material they had been discussing in Moscow.

The Soviet ambassadors in Washington, Paris and London were called home, meanwhile, for consultation.

West's Position

In Washington, the state department rushed out with its side of the story—three documents totaling about 2,000 words which set forth the west's position during the Moscow meetings.

Gromyko told Thompson he was making public Khrushchev's letter and policy statements because the western press had distorted Russia's position on a summit. Gromyko said he wanted to set the record straight.

The Khrushchev letter deplored the diplomatic talks in Moscow. The premier wrote:

"In some of these meetings we have only marked time, and in some cases we have even moved backwards."

"It is high time that both sides act with full sincerity to clear up their positions on the main question—do both sides

Dock Worker Drowns in Rescue of Milwaukee Mother, Child From River

Mrs. Joan Salewski Under Police Guard for Attempt to Take Own Life

Milwaukee — Carl Cramer, a 35-year-old dock worker, drowned Monday while rescuing a mother and daughter from the Menomonee river. Police said the woman had attempted to take her own life.

Det. Sgt. Frank Stachowiak had Mrs. Joan Salewski, 27, Milwaukee, placed under police guard after she told him she had "an uncontrollable urge to end it all."

He said Mrs. Salewski told him and Det. George Katsek that she dropped her 3-year-old daughter, Laura, into the river and then jumped in herself. She was taken to County General hospital for mental observation.

Mrs. Salewski is expecting her third child in a month.

Cramer spotted Mrs. Salewski and her daughter in the water. He swam to them and, with the aid of a life preserver, pushed them to safety. He slipped beneath the surface and drowned seconds before help could reach him.

Others Help

Edward Shaw, 53, Erie, Pa., a mate on a nearby coal boat, said Cramer cried out for help and disappeared.

Shaw said he swam out and tucked the child under one arm, and kept the mother's head above water with the aid of the life preserver as he paddled toward shore.

Lawrence Popelher, 36, a city employer, dove into the water to aid Shaw.

Stachowiak said Mrs. Salewski told him she and her husband, Edward, are natives of Marquette and moved to Milwaukee in 1952. Her husband is an accountant.

Cramer's wife, Myrna, is expecting her second child in two months. The Cramers have a daughter, Debra, 3.

Senators Shocked at Communist Execution, Call It Double Cross

Action May Indicate Tougher Soviet Control of Satellites

Washington — Sen. Mike Mansfield (D-Mont.) predicted today the execution of Hungary's former Premier Imre Nagy "will strengthen the resistance movement everywhere behind the Iron Curtain."

Mansfield and other members of the senate voiced shock and called the action a Soviet double cross.

Other American officials speculated the action may indicate a tougher Soviet control of its satellite countries. Some expressed the idea it might be considered a warning to Yugoslavia President Tito, who once again is at odds with Russia.

Yugoslavia had given Nagy asylum in its Budapest embassy when the 1956 Hungarian revolution was crushed, but surrendered him on promise of fair treatment.

Four Executed

Moscow radio announced last night that after trial by a Hungarian people's court, Nagy had been executed along with his associates "in the same Maj Gen. Pal Maleter, hero of the uprising, and two communist journalists."

Mansfield said the execution of the four is evidence that Soviet Premier Khrushchev is "as brutal and ruthless as Stalin."

"These martyrs will be the symbols behind which the captive peoples of Hungary and other satellites will rally in the years to come," Mansfield told a reporter.

Mansfield, a member of the senate foreign relations committee, said the Soviet announcement pointed up the need for new authority for President Eisenhower to offer additional aid to communist nations when he thinks it would enable them to loosen Moscow's control.

Strip Authority

The senate last week adopted an amendment by senate Republican leader William F. Knowland of California to strip such authority from the $3,712,000,000 foreign aid bill.

Citing the 43-42 roll call vote against the amendment, Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Ore.) said:

"The senate adopted an amendment that slammed the door in the faces of the people of the satellite countries by denying the president the right to use his discretion in offering aid to benefit the peoples themselves."

Secretary of State Dulles got news of the execution during intermission time of the first Washington performance of the Moiseyev company of Russian folk dancers—on a nationwide tour.

"Tragic," Dulles said, shaking his head sadly, "tragic." He refused, however, to discuss the matter.

Broke Promise

Mansfield said the Russians "broke another promise" in carrying out the executions.

"Premier Nagy was supposed to have been guaranteed safe asylum in Rumania by the Soviet government at the time of the Hungarian revolt," he said.

Sen. Styles Bridges (R-NH), chairman of the senate GOP policy committee, said the executions proved the "utter ruthlessness of the communists and the hopelessness of even trying to get along with them."

He said it put Khrushchev and his associates "in the same category with Stalin at his worst."

The Brooklyn woman added $5,500 to her previous total of

Miss Von Nardroff (AP Wirephoto)

$248,000 by defeating Herbert Hulise, Goldsboro, N. C., 21-10. This gave Miss Von Nardroff a total of $253,500.

She returns to the NBC-TV show "Twenty-One" next week, trailing Robert Leichster, a New York City educator, 11-10. Time ran out on their second game last night.

Quits Job

Miss Von Nardroff, 32, has quit her job as a personnel manager to concentrate on preparing for her weekly appearance on the program.

If she loses next week she'll be eliminated from the show and the new winner's earnings will be deducted from her total.

Tax experts figure that Miss Von Nardroff would have to pay around $200,000 to federal and state governments on her winnings at this point.

Bill Extends Benefits for Unemployed

Madison — The bill extending state unemployment compensation benefits an additional 13 weeks and temporarily boosting the maximum weekly benefits to $42 was signed into law by Gov. Thomson Monday.

The measure was passed by the Wisconsin legislature last week during its first special session in 10 years. The law is expected to be in effect by June 23.

An estimated 22,100 workers will have exhausted their regular benefits under Wisconsin law and be eligible for the emergency benefits. The new benefits are not retroactive.

No waiting period will be required. Workers under the new law can apply for benefits at local unemployment compensation offices.

State Spurns Aid on Unemployment Pay

Could Have Utilized Federal Help But Prefer to Stay Independent

BY JOHN WYNGAARD Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Madison—Generally unnoticed in the deliberation and argument which brought about a liberalization in the scale and duration of benefits under the Wisconsin unemployment compensation law is the fact that this state chose to finance the improvements out of its own resources and spurned federal loans.

Some $10,000,000 to $12,000,000 in additional benefits to be paid out this year under the new authorizations could have been obtained from Washington, under legislation enacted under the prodding of President Eisenhower.

They would be repaid at some future time, and thus the state's reserves could have been kept intact. There was also the possibility, as state officials realized, that a future congress would "forgive" such loans to the states.

Preserve Independence
The unspoken reason for the decision of the Thomson administration was the desire to preserve the integrity of the state reserve fund and the independence of action of the state in this field.

State fund advisors felt there was a chance that acceptance of the federal assistance offered would bring with it subjection to federal administrative interpretations and controls.

It might also have brought a step nearer the "federalization" of the unemployment compensation program against which this state has fought — with management and labor united — since Wisconsin devised the first law of its kind more than two decades ago. There has been constant pressure in some national circles for a national unemployment tax and benefit pool, under which this state would lose the advantages of the experience rating system which has distinguished its program during all of its history.

Employment History
Under experience rating an employee is eligible according to the history of his own employment, and an employer is liable for tax contributions according to his employment and wage experience.

Ultimately the new benefit disbursements will be reflected in higher future costs to Wisconsin contributing employers. But the immediate effect probably will be relatively painless for most of them—except as the new levels labeled "temporary" are likely to become permanent and thus assure an indefinite rise in their payroll costs.

Most of the emergency payments will be withdrawn from a so-called balancing account in the general reserve fund, made up of various excess payments in the past. Such surplus funds could be rebated to the employers who produced them and last year, in fact, the legislature did grant employers a substantial rebate from such excess balances.

Point to Rebates
But Gov. Thomson and other administration spokesmen are now pointing to the rebates of 1957 on behalf of the employers as partial justification for the increases in benefits for the larger numbers of unemployed today.

It is a difficult point for the technicians to establish in their public discussions, but that endorsement of the Thomson administration who has not reported lay-offs is not directly affected by the new benefit levels or their duration. His own tax contribution is based entirely on his own lay-off experience.

Many employers therefore have a low or zero rate of payroll taxes, and will continue to enjoy them in spite of the fact that withdrawals from the state fund are high and will become higher under the new law.

Japan Will Buy British-Built Atomic Plant

London — (AP) — Britain and Japan signed an agreement Monday under which the Japanese will buy a British-built atomic electric power plant designed to withstand earthquakes.

At the same time, Japan signed a 10-year agreement with the United States in Washington. The United States will provide Japan with 2,700 kilograms of enriched uranium for atomic power reactors.

Both agreements must be ratified by the Japanese parliament.

The Japanese are seeking bids from four British concerns for the construction of the atomic plant. It will cost about 30 million pounds ($84 million). The plant will be in the 140,000 kilowatt class. It will have built-in modifications providing protection against earthquakes, which plague Japan.

A statement issued by the foreign office said the agreement "covered the exchange of unclassified technical and operation information" as well as British assistance in the construction of atomic power plants in Japan.

Adams Says He Did Not Break Rules Knowingly for Goldfine

was affected on any public question? The slender, white-haired Adams gave his testimony in a way any firm, conversational voice, leaning forward on the witness of table with arms folded.

He stressed at the outset that he was appearing at his own request — having volunteered yesterday to testify at about 10 o'clock the same time the committee invited him to do so.

Sitting at his right elbow was Eisenhower's special counsel, Gerald D. Morgan.

Mrs. Adams Present Also accompanying Adams to the hearing was his wife, Rachel.

As he approached the hearing room, where the crowd of spectators overflowed into the corridor, Adams half smiled and remarked, "I've seen times when my audience left something to be desired. Apparently that won't be the case today."

The caucus room in which the hearing was held was jammed to the walls with spectators and newsmen, and there was an air of tension the like of which has not been seen on Capitol Hill for many a month.

House attendants said there were 153 newsmen at the hearing, not counting radio and TV newsmen and technicians.

Friends for Years Perhaps 400 spectators had seats. Another 100 persons at least had to stand jammed around the walls, including some congressmen.

At one point there weren't even enough seats for the witnesses. Folding chairs were rushed in by aides.

Adams was sworn in at 10:15 a.m. by Subcommittee Chairman Oren Harris (D-Ark.).

Adams told the committee members he and Goldfine had been friends for many years and had exchanged a number of gifts. He said he once gave Goldfine a gold watch.

He added: "The exchange of gifts between individuals and families is no new symbol of friendship. It is as old as civilization. To say that, in itself, the giving and accepting of gifts between friends is sinful or improper is as wrong as to say that any other normal human relationships are wrong."

As for his relations with the wealthy Goldfine, Adams told the house subcommittee on legislative oversight: "I can only say to this committee, with a clear conscience, that in the 54 years that I have been at my post, I have never permitted any personal relationships to affect in any way any actions of mine in connection with the conduct of my office."

Gift to President "If, on the contrary, I have been in any way so conducted myself as to cast any semblance of doubt upon such conduct, I can only say that the error was one of judgment and not of intent."

The testimony by Adams came on the heels of an acknowledgment by the White House that President Eisenhower himself once accepted a supply of valuable vicuna cloth from Goldfine.

The White House said, however, that Eisenhower passed the gift along to a friend and now can't even remember who the friend was.

James C. Hagerity, Eisenhower's press secretary, distinguished the presidential gift as a special news conference.

Called to talk about a column the hearing was held by Drew Pearson. Hagerity said the article contained at least 10 "lies."

One of the items on which the press secretary put the "lie" label was a portion quoting Adams as saying Eisenhower once got from Goldfine a coat of the costly vicuna material, which is the wool from a rare South American animal similar to a llama.

Hotel Bills Paid Adams acknowledged that Goldfine paid hotel bills for him at the plush Waldorf-Astoria in New York. The subcommittee yesterday produced evidence Goldfine did pay such bills. Those were in addition to Boston hotel bills previously brought into testimony.

The investigators also brought out that the New York Hotel bills were paid about the time one of Goldfine's textile companies was in trouble before the federal trade commission. The case was settled about the same time. There had been testimony about inquiries by Adams to the FTC about his friend's troubles there, but Adams has denied he used any influence.

In his statement, Adams posed these questions to the subcommittee: "Did Bernard Goldfine benefit in any way in his relations with any branch of the federal government because he was a friend of Sherman Adams?"

Gave No Favors "Did Sherman Adams seek to secure any favors or benefits for Bernard Goldfine because of this friendship?"

"My answer to both questions is: 'No.'"

Adams then went on to say: "I know of no action requested or taken by me or by any member of the staff with any government official that has resulted in any benefit to Bernard Goldfine that he could not have received had he gone directly to the agency involved and he and I had been complete strangers."

Dealing with the rug and coat reports Adams said first: "When Bernard Goldfine first visited Mrs. Adams and me in the house we now occupy in Washington he commented on the shabbiness of the rug which then covered a rather large living room floor. He said he would like to get a better one, although I told him at the time that such a rug would be of no use to us when we moved from our present house or returned to New Hampshire."

Goldfine Owns Rug "He replied that when that time came and I had no further use for it, I should return it. The rug is his property and he so regards it."

As for the report regarding the coat, Adams said: "Bernard Goldfine is a manufacturer of fabrics. He is proud of his mills and their products. From time to time he has expressed this pride in the form of gifts made of these fabrics,

Drivers Could Emulate Some Slow Insects, Council Opines

That fable about flies streak-horsefly going faster than 151 ing 820 miles an hour is for the miles an hour, he says. The same is true on the highway—traveling fast is pretty birds. Top speed for insects is Even if insects could travel dangerous there, too. But a lot about 35 in short sprints, ac-faster, they'd have horse sense of humans, apparently, don't cording to a British professor enough not to, insect lovers, have the sense of insects when claim. Too many dangers from it comes to driving a car. And you'll never catch a traveling fast, they point out. Speeding is a factor in about four out of 10 fatal motor ve- hicle accidents, according to the National Safety council. You don't necessarily have to exceed the posted limit to be speeding, the council points out. Observe the limit in a 25 miles an hour zone during a blizzard and you may end up with a ticket. "Speeding," the council says, "increases the likelihood of an accident. The greater the speed the less time you have to react in emergencies. It takes longer, naturally, to stop a speeding auto than one moving slowly. Besides, speeding is costly. It can cost you money—and maybe your life."

Stevenson Muffs One

Former presidential candidate Adlai Stevenson, in a commencement address at Michigan State university, proposed several ways to "ease tensions" between East and West and, presumably, promote liberty and justice throughout the world. One of his ideas is aimed at bolstering the free world's economy, another at slowing down the arms race particularly in the nuclear field.

The economic plan has merit although it is an outline of what needs to be done rather than the means of doing it. Stevenson points to the surge of Russian trade ideas, their proposals of aid and grants, and the Soviet's expanding production. None of this can be denied nor should we deceive ourselves, as Stevenson indicates we have, in believing that Russia "is backward economically and technically and that it is sure to collapse from internal defects."

But Stevenson failed to point out that the whole aim of Russia's trade and aid programs is not to strengthen underdeveloped countries but to make them reliant on the Soviet Union, and to disrupt free world trade plans at the expense of anyone. Certainly we agree that the United States must take the lead toward a better developed trade situation in the world, and often our individual regions or industries fail to look at the whole picture. Stevenson suggests the establishment of a Committee of Experts, but it does not seem that one more committee would forward Sen. Monroney's suggestions for expanding the World Bank and International Monetary Fund, for instance, or reduce the opposition in other countries besides the United States to more liberal trade policies.

But it is in the political realm that Stevenson falls dangerously flat. The West, he says, must "accept the principle of Soviet equality in power. I don't see how we could agree to a political status quo which would mean rigid spheres of influence. But it seems to me that both sides, seeing that the approximate equality of power is what is keeping the peace, might agree to preserve that equality. If both sides are content with power equality, then to reduce forces and limit nuclear weapons become matters of arithmetic and enforcement, not of prestige and political influence in the world. . . . Certainly, equality is closer to reality. . . ."

Does Stevenson actually believe that such a move on the part of the West would make Russia "content"? Did the Munich agreement soothe Hitler? Stevenson says that "we could not . . . advance proposals at the summit that would increase our relative power; neither could they, which would be quite a change from their cynical attempts in the past to get and not to give." Will the character of the entire Soviet apparatus change to one of sweetness and light by this waving of the "equality" wand?

The recognition of power equality, we must assume, would mean the recognition and admittance to the already-befuddled United Nations of Red China and the communist government of East Germany. Assumption that such moves would increase "security" in the world or slow down the arms race or reduce Russia's appetite for bigger conquests by political, economic or military means, are not only without reasonable evidence, they are visionary and fantastic. What of justice to the peoples who have continued to fight against communism as they fought against nazism? Stevenson's plan is, purely and simply, a division of the world between the two giants of power. It is a sellout of the conquered peoples.

Stevenson quite accurately says that "mistrust is the root of evil in the world. . . . Nobody trusts anybody; this is the heart of the trouble." His plan would add millions to those who would trust the United States even less than they do today — and with good reason.

Commencement addresses are traditionally unheard. Despite Stevenson's beautiful diction, his command of the language and his snatches of humor, we may hope that few listened, for his words were appallingly empty of idealism or challenge to take the graduates from "comfortable family life, a split-level ranch house, Social Security and three cars in the garage."

Dr. Pinkham on the Small College

Why should we have small, independent colleges such as Lawrence, St. Norbert, Ripon, Beloit and others which are familiar to everyone in this vicinity? Dr. Fred O. Pinkham, president of Ripon college, has undertaken the task of explaining why such colleges exist and why they should be continued in the face of tremendous competition.

A recent estimate is that it costs over $800 per year to educate a student at the University of Wisconsin. There is no tuition charge at the university for Wisconsin residents, and the fees charged amount to only about one-fourth the cost of instruction. At the small, independent colleges the cost of instruction may be as great or greater than at the university and a substantial part of it must be paid by the students. Gifts to the colleges make up the balance.

That explains why enrollments at the university and other state-supported colleges are at capacity, why they continually need more facilities. How is it that the small colleges can exist at all, not to mention their continual growth? Dr. Pinkham says it is because the small colleges teach the humanities which are the courses intended to take a youth and make him into a whole man. The small colleges try to teach how to live with others, how to manage other people and direct their activities. The small colleges leave vocational training to industry or to post-graduate courses, training in post-graduate work

Their success is indicated in studies that have been made of the leaders in many fields. Dr. Pinkham says the ratio is about 38 to 50 in favor of the small colleges. That is, of 50 important leaders in science and industry 38 were found to have taken their bachelor's degrees in small colleges.

Aside from such direct evidence, it is important to maintain the small college as the one institution in America which is still free of the influence of government. Dr. Pinkham fears, however, that government will soon be reaching out for control of the small colleges. As an example he points to Illinois. There a survey indicated that while the government - supported universities were bursting at the seams there were 20,000 places open at the small colleges in the state. The Illinois legislature has set up a fund to pay the tuition of students at the small colleges. This is cheaper than building additional public institutions of higher learning. While the move may be welcomed by some colleges with enrollments under their capacities, it nevertheless indicates the way in which government may soon control the small colleges.

As Dr. Pinkham says, the small colleges are able to give their students many things of value found only outside of the pattern of the government supported and directed schools. At a time when conformity is troubling many people, the small college has something that is well worth the support necessary to preserve it.

Clintonville Faces Air Service Crisis

From The Clintonville Tribune-Gazette

The news brings information that Appleton has been approved on a "use it or lose it" basis for North Central Airlines service between the Twin Cities and Milwaukee.

To Clintonville residents concerned about the future of their community this should be an ominous warning.

A recent visit by North Central Airlines to Clintonville has shown whether its flights stop at Clintonville or Appleton unless the stop pays for itself. Plain economics must some day force it to so route its Northliners as to pay the greatest profit consistent with public service.

We in Clintonville will not have to fear loss of the air service we now enjoy and badly need if we meet the minimum standards which the Civil Aeronautics board has set for permanent certification, no matter how many other stops North Central may be authorized to make.

Censorship Infringes on All Our Freedoms

From the St. Petersburg Florida Times

It is easy to sympathize with parents who don't want their youngsters to grow up too fast, but when they use economic pressure to force certain books off the newsstands, these apprehensive parents are stepping on the toes of people who have already grown up. . . .

The popularity of paperback books has made it possible for people to buy more books than ever before. Where once a literature was available only in a handful of multi-book stores, good reading now can be obtained in every book store and sundries store in the nation.

But the widespread distribution of paperback books makes it easy for children to get hold of books written for adults. Do you cut off an arm to cure a hangnail? We think not. . . . Let the parents' organizations police the reading of their own children. Let them provide what they consider proper literature for young minds. . . . The freedom of adults to read books which are not legally obscene is a hallowed freedom. Censorship which infringes this freedom—however slightly—infringes all freedoms.

Residents of County Don't Seek Offices

Editor, Post-Crescent:

As July 8, the deadline for filing of nomination papers, draws near, the usual problem of finding candidates for county and state legislative offices becomes more acute. Both Democrats and Republicans in Outagamie county seem to face the same situation — a shortage of qualified aspirants for the elective offices. The minority party has an additional handicap, of course, because it cannot guarantee victory to those of its candidates without primary contests.

But there must be some reason why more people aren't interested in holding elective office. Right now six full-time and two part-time jobs are open on the county level, plus three state legislative jobs. Outside of the sheriff's job, which will pay an annual salary of $8,000, practically no interest has been shown in the county clerk's job, at $6,000 per year, or the offices of registrar of deeds, clerk of court, or county treasurer, each of which pays $5,300 per year.

Many Outagamie residents are qualified and able to serve. In some cases, perhaps the positions can be made to attract more qualified personnel. For instance, should the county board re-evaluate the position it has taken that the district attorney's job be full time, with no private practice allowed? Does $6,400 per year fully compensate a good lawyer for not being able to build a private practice to which he can turn when he no longer wishes to hold office? Other counties have a lively race for the position of district attorney. Why isn't the same true in Outagamie?

As yet, there are no candidates, except for the incumbents, for assemblyman for Outagamie's second district, or for the state Senate district encompassing Waupaca and Outagamie counties. Perhaps prospective candidates aren't aware that both parties are actively seeking competent, interested people for these positions. Whatever the reason, it seems a pity that where elections are free and democracy is in practice, elective positions should go by default.

Food Industry Booms; Americans Live Well On Best Land Offers

From the Ogden (Utah) Standard Examiner.

We have just seen a statement by Paul S. Willis, president of the Grocery Manufacturers of America, in which he declares the food industry is the brightest spot in the economy at this time. Americans will spend more than $79 billion for food in 1958, compared to $75 billion in 1957.

There is no doubt that the food business is booming with more persons emerging from the grocery stores carrying big bags filled with all kinds of good things to eat and to drink.

And the season for super-fine eating is just beginning, what with the earliest fruits, such as strawberries and cherries, going to the markets. The early June peas are not far distant to be consumed with new potatoes. The picnic season of course, is good for the food business, because men, women and children on picnics eat more than they do at home.

Mr. Willis says there appears to be no "downgrading" of food purchases. Some grocers will question this as they sell more of the less expensive and more filling foods to large families on part time labor or no work at all. There is no denying, however, that the American people in large part are living well on the best that the land has to offer.

Menasha Stave Factory Burns

79 YEARS AGO

Quoted from the Appleton Crescent for the week of June 21, 1879.

On Monday, at about 11 o'clock, the extensive factory building of A. Syme and Co. at Menasha was burned. The loss included the machinery and considerable stock.

The favorable condition of the wind prevented a heavy loss of stock. We understand the property destroyed was about one-half insured and also that the proprietors intend rebuilding at once.

State's Tourists Now Roving Group of People

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison—A holiday weekend in the Wisconsin north country produces a variety of impressions upon the observant traveler aware of the economic significance of the tourist's dollar in the broad, timber belt.

Traffic is heavy. Wyngaard There can be very little doubt that the hopeful pre-season estimates of the state tourist bureau about a visitor volume equal to or exceeding that of the recent boom years will be borne out. A certain slackness of employment around the country will not produce an immediate reaction in the Wisconsin vacation industry, which relies basically upon the middle class of the great metropolitan cluster that is Chicago.

But the nature of the tourist business is changing, as conversation with some of the keepers of older resorts will quickly suggest.

There is one widely known hostelry in northwestern Wisconsin that has been up for sale for two years, for an ostensibly reasonable price. But the inquirers are few. The apparent reason is that today's tourists require or demand first class accommodations. Many of the resorts of the north were built 20 and more years ago. Their style is no longer as appealing as it once was. There is some worry among their proprietors, in spite of the crowded highways and the other signs of rising total patronage of the fish and timber counties.

CHANGING TIMES

The Chicago family man with a healthy vacation budget who used to take his wife and children to a resort for a week or ten days or longer is getting scarcer. The vacationer today is more mobile than ever before. He is restless. He comes with an automobile and a boat and trailer and he insists upon moving about. The motel is prospering in localities where some of the old-style resort managers are worrying.

This new style tourist will also make more demands upon public facilities as time goes on. The signs are already evident in some of the hearings on the issue of higher budgets for camping facilities in state forests and parks and access facilities to lakes and streams. Some politicians are already talking about programs to condemn lands for such access and to provide boat docking and service points.

The visitor finds some of the business men of the north country wondering also whether the state's promotion has not been overdone, with respect to the muskelunge fishing theme. The man from Evanston who has been lured to a northern Wisconsin watering place with the promise of a trophy fish is likely to ask some sharp questions when he compares his own experience with that of others at his resort and finds that the famed tiger is scarce indeed. The party of which this chronicler was a member, guests at one of the best resorts on a famed musky lake, couldn't help noticing the excitement that went through the township at the report of a single muskelunge of respectable size taken during an opening weekend of intensive fishing. The buzzing on the telephone wires furnished an eloquent commentary on the conservation commission' optimistic statistics about 47,000 of the erratures taken in a typical Wisconsin season.

PLUS SIGNS

But there are also good signs, for the observant motorist.

The roadsides abound with evidence of the harvesting of pulpwood and other forest products that have grown up during the last quarter of a century and notably the aspen which is finding an increasing utilization in the state's industry. The upper third of the state is green again, with the promise of an ever-increasing increment of wealth in the decades that stretch ahead.

There also is a solid progress in a proliferating private ownership throughout the timber counties. Thousands of parcels are being sold each year to families from distant cities who are building vacation retreats on lake shores which knew only the fire-scarred pine and hemlock a few decades earlier. The tax base is being enriched and the local governments of the north stabilized. The new tax base, indeed, is so tempting to local assessors and town boards that it is one of the minor problems of state tax supervisors to persuade them to keep assessments of non-residents in decent conformity with those of the local owners who vote.

Legislative Council Studies Road Report

Sub-Committee Finds Many Rural Thoroughfares in Bad Condition

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison — A broad hint that the job of public road building is in Wisconsin, now using up tax money in multi-million dollar chunks, has probably only been given Monday to the not in the degree surface condition. Wisconsin Legislative council, the interim research and planning arm of the state legislature.

The hint came in a preliminary report of the findings by the rural road inventory investigation sponsored by a high-way sub-committee of the council.

Lowances of state money for rural road maintenance in all levels of government. The preliminary report shows money in multi-million dollar chunks, has probably only been given Monday to the not in the degree surface condition. Wisconsin Legislative council, the interim research and planning arm of the state legislature.

One significant finding was that a heavy proportion of all of the rural roads in the state are deficient when measured by surface condition.

"This suggests that during the next five or ten years major attention must be given to the surface condition of our rural roads," said Alexander.

Intensive Studies
The report based on intensive studies in Marinette, Winnebago, Dane, Trempealeau, Douglas and Lincoln counties showed that surface deficiencies were found on 56 per cent of the major state-federal roads in rural areas, on 41 per cent of the primary roads, 34 per cent of the secondary roads, and about 35 per cent of the local and town roads.

The study will be expanded to cover all 85,000 miles of rural roads in the state in 71 counties. Standards against which the type and condition of the roads were measured were defined by a state-local government committee. One result of the study will be creation of a master road inventory file at Madison which will guide the legislature in future years in highway finance and planning policy.

It was also evident, however, that the inventory will be the basis for early campaigns in the legislature for heavier allowances of state money for rural road maintenance in all levels of government.

The preliminary report shows money in multi-million dollar chunks, has probably only been given Monday to the not in the degree surface condition. Wisconsin Legislative council, the interim research and planning arm of the state legislature.

Found Deficient

Significantly, much of road width was found to be deficient, suggesting that future road reconstruction may involve considerable outlays for acquisition of additional right of way.

The width of the road bed itself, in most instances, was found to be adequate.

Alexander might have been alluding to the relatively planless way in which countless past legislatures have doled out endless millions of dollars in state road funds under the demands of the local government.

For the first time the legislature will have all of the information before it on the condition of more than 85,000 miles of rural roads," he said.

Pre-School Session Set For Summer

Rec Department to Sponsor Program for Smaller Youngsters

Kaukauna — Another new feature will be tried by the recreation department this summer as a program for pre-school age children has been arranged by Mrs. Arthur Nagel, playground director.

The first session will be held at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning on the library grounds and subsequent sessions will be held on Monday, Wednesday and Friday mornings from 9 o'clock until 11:30 in the morning.

This will necessitate parents or older youngsters bringing the children to the library grounds and then picking them up later in the morning.

The pre-school program will be open to youngsters from four through six and principal purpose of the sessions will be to give youngsters who have not yet attended school a chance to learn to play and work as individuals and as part of a group.

Adult Leaders
The children will be under close adult supervision at all times and the library grounds was selected as the meeting site because of the facilities available at the public library.

Plans call for the program to include story telling and reading by adult leaders, the showing of movies, minor craft work such as finger painting and coloring, singing, rhythm work and games both active and quiet. Parents have enrolled youngsters in the class sessions and adequate supervision has been arranged to handle the large number attending, according to Mrs. Nagel.

Finnish Editor Wins Long Fight

U. S. District Court Dismisses Action Against Heikkinen

Madison — (U-P) — A 6-year long deportation action against Knut E. Heikkinen, 68, former publisher of a Finnish newspaper at Superior, was dismissed in U. S. District court Monday by Judge Patrick T. Stone.

The U. S. Board of Immigration Appeals in 1952 said Heikkinen had been a member of the Communist party from 1922 to 1930 and ordered him deported. Heikkinen, never naturalized, came to the United States in 1916 and spent about three years in Russia during the 1930s. He was convicted under a 1950 law making it a criminal offense to fail to leave the country within six months of a deportation order and failure to apply for travel documents.

Convicted in 1954

He was convicted by a federal court jury here in 1954. The Chicago Circuit court of appeals reversed that conviction. He was retried in 1956 and convicted again. The appeals court upheld the conviction but the U. S. Supreme court ruled last January that evidence did not warrant conviction. It remanded the case back to the Madison court for further action in accordance with the high court decision.

U. S. Atty. George Rapp moved for dismissal of the case. He said the government presented all its evidence at the trial and there was no new evidence to warrant further proceedings. Rapp told Judge Stone he did not know if the immigration service planned further deportation attempts.

Nagy and Three Others Executed by Reds

he had appealed for an amnesty for Nagy and "instead there have come the new executions which reopen the wounds."

The news was broken by Moscow on the anniversary of the 1953 East Berlin revolt against red rule.

No Accident

"This was no accident," said the Vienna Neuer Kurier. "Now Moscow's bloody vengeance against Nagy, Maletier and colleagues serves new warning that it will tolerate nothing but abject obedience to its commands."

After the 1948 break between Tito and Stalin there was a wave of arrests and executions of alleged Titoists in the satellite countries.

When Stalin died in 1953,

Khrushchev attempted to patch things up with the Yugoslav ruler. As long as there seemed to be hope that Tito would join the Soviet power bloc wholeheartedly, Nagy's life was safe, observers in Belgrade said. But in recent months Tito made clear he intends to keep one foot in the west.

The execution of Nagy was a special affront to the Yugoslav government. Its embassy in Budapest gave him refuge when the revolt was crushed. The embassy released him only on the promise of safe conduct to his home by the Kadar government. Russian troops disregarded the promise.

In addition to the executions, prison terms were meted out to five others close to Nagy.

Budapest radio said Nagy and Maletier refused to make the full confessions to the people's friend and he became premier court which tried them secretly in Budapest. Dates of the trial and executions were not made public.

All nine were charged with "organization of a plot aimed at overthrowing" the Hungarian government. Nagy also was convicted of "betraying the motherland" and Maletier of "organizing a military uprising."

Ex-President Included
Budapest radio said Nagy, Maletier and Jozsef Szilagyi denied the charges "but later under the weight of incriminating evidence they made partial confessions." Szilagyi and Miklos Gimes were communist journalists executed with Nagy and Maletier.

The most prominent of the five men sentenced to prison was Zoltan Tildy, Hungary's first postwar president, who was given 5 to 12 years. He was a leader of the largest political party in Hungary before the communist minority took over. Then he stayed on in various jobs as windowdressing for the red regimes, serving as a minister of state in Nagy's shortlived revolt government.

Hungarian officials have been denying persistent reports that Tildy was in jail.

Others imprisoned were Col. Sandor Kopaecy, an aide to Maletier in the uprising; Ferenc Donath, a supporter of Nagy during the revolt; Ferenc Janosi, a son-in-law of Nagy; and Miklos Vasarhelyi, a former editor of the communist party paper Szabad Nep.

Kopaecy was given life imprisonment, the others 5-12 years.

Died Before Trial

Budapest radio said Geza Losonczy, a former minister in Nagy's government, had died before he could be tried. This was the first announcement of his death.

Nagy had been a Hungarian communist since he was 21 years old in 1917, working his way up through party ranks with the help of training in Russia. He was a vice premier under tough, Stalinist Premier Matyas Rakosi.

After Stalin died in 1953 and Georgi Malenkov introduced a new look in Moscow, Rakosi resigned and Nagy was premier for two years. He followed the Malenkov line of trying to make life easier for the masses. But when Nikita Khrushchev dumped Malenkov in 1955, Nagy and his soft line soon were replaced by another tough Hungarian regime. This tough regime fathered the revolt on Oct. 23, 1956. The people remembered Nagy as a friend and he became premier again, at first channeling the revolt along the lines of liberalization within the Soviet fold but eventually getting swept up in the anti-Russian emotions that evoked the Kremlin crack-down.

Maletier was a professional soldier—a major general—whose Hungarian army troops went with the people after Oct. 23 to win the first round against Soviet occupation forces.

Then Soviet military commanders invited him to a meeting which they said was to negotiate the withdrawal of Russian forces. Maletier never returned and a few hours later fresh Soviet troops poured into Budapest early Nov. 4 to smash the revolt.

Maletier's divorced wife and three children fled from Hungary to Canada but last night were reported to have moved to New York. She said she divorced him in 1953 because they quarreled incessantly about communism—he defending it and she opposing it. The secret trial apparently followed the standard Kremlin line that the revolt was an attempt of landlords and capitalists supported by western imperialists to replace Hungary's communist government with a fascist dictatorship.

Tito Attacked For Accepting Aid From U. S.

Red China Calls Him Judas, Soviet Critical of Action

Belgrade, Yugoslavia — President Tito and the Soviet bloc swapped broadsides Sunday. Tito defended his acceptance of U.S. aid, and Peiping radio compared him to Judas Iscariot for taking the American help.

Tito asked a crowd of 50,000 in the coal mining town of Labin what right Nikita Khrushchev had to attack Yugoslavia for getting U.S. aid when the Soviet premier himself was soliciting credit from Washington.

The Yugoslav president said American aid had been sent to his country after his break with Stalin in 1948 "because hunger threatened here and in order to help us to protect our independence against Stalin."

Yugoslavia needs American wheat, cotton, fats and other products, and "the American wheat is no worse than the Russian, which we do not receive," he continued.

Insulting To People The Yugoslav leader said Khrushchev's attack on his independent brand of communism "insulted not only the Yugoslav leadership but the Yugoslav people, too... we will remain faithful to our principles and stick to our just road."

Turning to communist China, Tito accused the Peiping regime of operating on the theory that world communism can be built by war.

"Socialism (communism) cannot be built by wars," he said, adding that Red China stands "against relaxation of tension in the world on the same line as some of the most reactionary circles in the west." Tito claimed the Chinese leaders had been attacking him to minimize difficulties at home.

Chinese Blast Red China's blast came from Chen Po-ta, vice president of the Chinese Academy of Sciences. Peiping radio quoted him thus:

"For the imperialists, Tito is indeed more valuable than Judas. Judas got only 30 pieces of silver. The price paid Tito by the American imperialists is hundreds of millions of times this figure."

Moscow's Pravda, the Soviet communist party newspaper, also lambasted the Yugoslav leader. It accused him of revisionism — backsliding from communist gospel and one of the worst red sins. Pravda compared Tito to Imre Nagy, the Hungarian premier who took over during the 1956 revolt and was ousted and exiled by the Soviet army.

11-Year-Old Wife Has Baby Daughter

Columbia, Mo. — Mrs. Charles William Turner, Jr., whose marriage a year ago resulted in charges against her husband, is a mother. She's 11 years old.

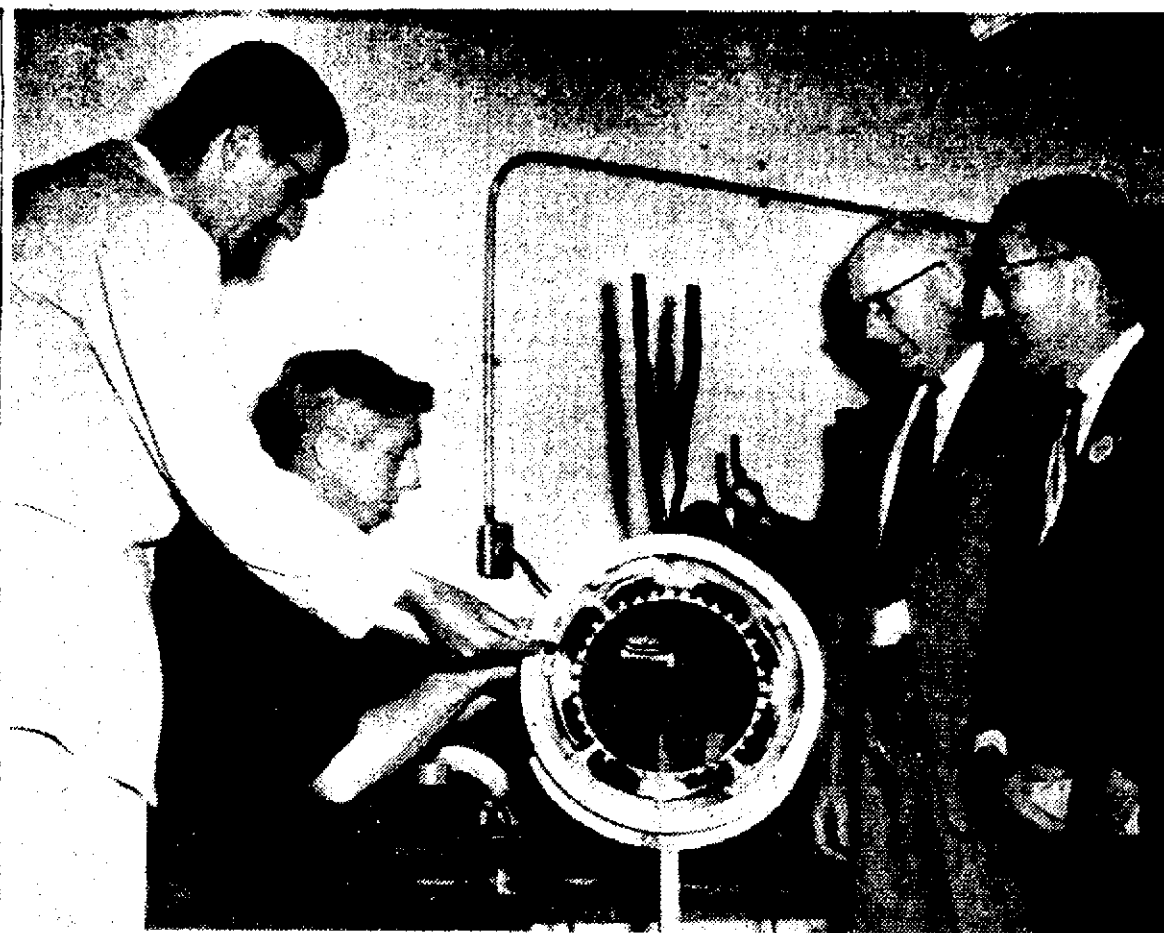

Mrs. Turner gave birth Saturday to a daughter, Pamela Ann, at the University of Missouri hospital. Both Mrs. Turner and her daughter, who weighed 7 pounds, 13 ounces, are reported in good condition.

Mrs. Turner and her husband, a 20-year-old employee of Columbia's transit system, were married a year ago last Wednesday. Turner was charged last July 17 with swearing falsely that his bride-to-be was 15 when they applied for a marriage license. However, the charge was dropped by the Audrain County Prosecutor after Mrs. Turner became pregnant.

Mrs. Turner will be 12 on Aug. 7.

Many Reasons for Situation

Anti-U. S. Feeling Growing in Key Areas of World, AP Writers Find

BY RELMAN MORIN

Algiers — Gen. De Gaulle's return to power and the favorable American reaction to it, as reported here, appear to have improved French feeling toward the United States.

Traditional French politeness creates a surface impression of friendliness. Underneath, however, is a jagged edge of criticism. Frenchmen believe, or say they believe, that America's business interests are trying to move in on the French position in North Africa. And that the United States is assisting Arab nationalist movements all the way from Casablanca to the Suez canal.

"You did this," and "you did that," the Frenchman will say to an American today. He then goes back to American intervention in the British-French attack on Suez and Egypt two years ago.

He is especially bitter about that.

Work Against Aim He then catalogues a list of incidents to support his contention that the United States government is quietly working against him.

He begins with the French bombing of the Tunisian border town of Sakiet Sidi Youssef last Feb. 8, followed by severe American newspaper reaction.

"You did not understand that this was a sanctuary for rebels who were killing our men in Algeria," the French say. Before that U.S. shipments of arms to Tunisia aroused French feelings. So did the offer of "good offices" a week after the bombing.

Over-all, Uncle Sam will find it hard to win in North Africa. If there is American support for the national aspirations of the Arabs, then French hostility will grow.

If support for Arab aspirations for independence isn't given, Soviet propaganda can trumpet "colonialism" and strike with heavy effect in the hearts of millions in North Africa.

Damascus — The U.S. stock remains low among the literate population of the Arab east. But it is still not damaged beyond repair.

Anti-American sentiment among nationalists even here in Syria is not so pronounced as six months ago at the height of the Turkish-Syrian crisis. The door remains at least slightly ajar.

Mid-east Arabs are generally cordial toward individual Americans. The nationalists are quarreling with the U.S. government. What happens regarding goodwill to the United States depends largely upon the United States itself.

Even ardent nationalists seem to feel uneasy about too close involvement with any great bloc. There is a feeling that the United States is obsessed with the idea that the policy of Arab governments is anti-American unless it is totally in line with Washington ideas. This is the thing resented most.

Nationalists — most literate Arabs are nationalists — still feel there is room for degrees of neutralism in this part of the world.

Prime Example They point out Lebanon as a prime example. Basically that situation is a domestic crisis confused by outside pressure, but the Lebanese remain fundamentally pro-American. Some argue that U.S. insistence upon

Publisher Denies Deal In Loan From Goldfine

Boston — John Fox, former publisher of the defunct Boston Post, says no political deals were involved when he borrowed $400,000 from Bernard Goldfine, now a central figure in a congressional committee investigation.

In a statement last night, Fox said the loan was arranged for him by the late Paul A. Dever, former Democratic governor of Massachusetts.

He denied an article in Time magazine which said Goldfine "extended a $400,000 line of credit" to Fox "on condition the Post make a last-minute switch to support Dever."

The paper did support Dever in that campaign, but he lost.

total commitment to Washington cold-war policies could drive many normally pro-American people into anti-American attitudes.

In an area like Saudi Arabia it can be said the sentiment is not so much anti-American as it is bound up with distant aspirations for some sort of Arab unity.

The over-all mid-east picture seems to indicate that a sympathetic gesture toward certain aims of Arab nationalism, coupled with an uncompromising statement of American policy, might go far toward easing Arab annoyance and disillusionment with the United States.

BY LARRY ALLEN

Bogota — South Americans do not hold anything against their North American neighbors personally. But they hold a lot of gripes against the United States in general. The South American feels that he has been taken too much for granted as a friend to the point where he is being left out.

Some will tell you traditional friendship has slipped into hatred and contempt. Their reasons may differ, but the result is the same.

Venezuelans are miffed because the U.S. government has limited the amount of oil they can sell to the United States. Coffee-growing Colombia is angry because the United States is buying coffee from Africa.

Peru and Chile complain that they can't sell all they want of their minerals on U.S. markets.

Trade Barriers

In Uruguay, Ecuador, Argentina and Paraguay, they say U.S. trade barriers have hurt their economies.

Additionally, South Americans can't understand why the United States supports and deals with Latin dictators and they ask why the United States sends billions in aid across the Atlantic and Pacific but pinches pennies as they see it, with Latin America.

South American officials claim U.S. policies are driving their countries to the communists. The officials recognize the necessity of siding with the United States on international affairs. But they warn this does not prevent them from looking for closer contacts with Russia and her satellites, particularly when the United States won't buy their surpluses and the Soviet bloc will.

They warn, too, that one day the United States may find the communists have infiltrated in to places of power.

Britain Makes New Plan for Cyprus' Future

To Ask Cooling-Off Period, Provide Self-Government

London — Britain went doggedly ahead with preparations to announce its new plan for the future of Cyprus today despite advance Greek and Turkish rejection.

New violence and bloodshed were feared on the east Mediterranean island. British troops, reinforced by paratroopers flown out from England, were on the alert to meet new trouble.

The plan was to be announced by Prime Minister Macmillan in London and Gov. Sir Hugh Foot in Nicosia.

It is expected to provide some measure of self-government for the British colony, a cooling-off period that the Greek and Turkish governments would be asked to help sponsor and perhaps a promise of a self-determination plebiscite in the future in which the island's Greek majority presumably would vote for independence as a prelude to joining Greece.

Guerrilla Campaign

The population of Cyprus includes about 500,000 persons of Greek extraction and 140,000 of

Widening of Lawe Worries Committee

Widening of N. Lawe street between E. Wisconsin avenue and E. Summer street, proposed by Alderman Roy Pointer and Donald Mueller, has the street and sanitation committee worried.

Committeemen Monday referred cost estimates to the board of public works. They want an expression from the board about:

1. Eventual widening south to E. College avenue.
2. How special assessments will be handled on the 1-block section and how they will be affected by an eventual widening to E. College.

The section from E. College to E. Wisconsin was placed on the county trunk highway system in May by the county board.

Appleton Supv. Glenn E. Pelton described the county board action as "conniving" and "sub-

Turkish descent. The Greeks have been waging a sporadic guerrilla campaign for Enosis — union with Greece — while the Turks demand that Cyprus be partitioned between the two communities.

Britain gave both the Greek and Turkish governments an advance look at the new plan. An informant close to the Athens government said the Greeks would turn it down as not going far enough. The Turkish parliament earlier adopted a resolution declaring Turkey would accept nothing but parti-

City Inspector Named To Midwestern Post

City Electrical Inspector Fred Volkman has been named to a review panel of the western section of the International Association of Electrical Inspectors.

The panel, he said, will review electrical code changes in the fields of capacitors, transformers, trans for m e r volts, resistors, reactors and circuits and equipment above 600 volts.

The western section, Volkman said, includes most midwestern states between W. Virginia and Nebraska.

terfuge." He inferred the street, and others which were added to the trunk system at the same time, never would be part of the trunk except to legalize county aid for the College-to-Candee high level bridge project. His charge went unanswered.

Street committeemen avoided mention of possible county aid in connection with future widening of N. Lawe.

Director of Public Works Edwin J. Duszynski reported the E. Wisconsin-to - E. Summer work, as drafted by his engineers, would cost about $3,600. The committee also wants some expression from the works board on how assessments along the block will be handled.

The plan calls for widening from 32 feet to 41 feet, enough to add a lane of traffic. Costs include those for removing six trees and replacing some drive-

Pope Presides at Final Consistory For Canonization

Vatican City — Clad in ceremonial robes and wearing a golden miter, Pope Pius XII presided today at a final third consistory to prepare for the canonizations of a Spanish nun and an Italian Franciscan.

At the conclusion of the semi-public ceremony in which 15 cardinals and 40 bishops and archbishops expressed a unanimously favorable vote, the pontiff set Nov. 23 as the date for the double canonization.

The canonizations will raise the Italian Franciscan Carlo da Sezze and the Spanish nun Giocchina de Vedruna de Mas to be saints of the Roman Catholic church. They will be the first since June 12, 1954, when five persons were raised to this highest honor of the church.

A week ago two other consistories, one secret and one public, were held to advance the canonization causes.

Carlo da Sezze, a lay member of the Franciscan organization, was born at the Italian town of Sezze Romano Oct. 19, 1613. He died in Rome Jan. 6, 1670, after having won a reputation for piety. Giocchina de Vedruna de Mas was the founder of the Carmelites of Charity. She was born at Barcelona April 16, 1783, and died there of cholera Aug. 28, 1854.

Lawrence Says:
Democrats Must Answer
For Acts in November

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Washington—Since the Democratic party controls both houses of congress, the American people will be asked to hold it responsible in the November elections for acts of omission as well as commission.

It looks now as if the biggest single challenge flung at congress will be ignored. For the Democratic policy committee of the senate has declined thus far to permit a vote to be taken on a bill that would help the country fight the communist conspiracy. The same old charge made in 1952 that the Democratic party is "soft on communism" will be heard again during the coming campaign. Likewise, it will be said that the Democratic party has turned a deaf ear to the mothers and fathers who want to see confessed rapists kept in jail instead of being allowed to roam around free to repeat their offenses.

The "New York Daily News," which has the largest circulation of any daily newspaper in the United States, has just published a criticism with which many members of congress in both parties here privately agree but which they have not ventured to act on by passing remedial legislation. The editorial says in part:

"It begins to look as if congress — the current 85th congress, that is, which expires at the year's end — has decided to put up no further fight against the Earl Warren Supreme Court's numerous kindnesses to communists, attacks on the powers of congressional investigating committees, and invasions of states' rights and the crime-fighting powers of police."

"The Butler-Jenner bill . . . was approved weeks ago by the Senate judiciary committee—meaning it is eligible for debate and vote in the full senate at any time. Yet the Senate's Democratic policy committee in its wisdom has kept the bill from being called up for action on the plea that more important legislation is before congress and a long Butler-Jenner debate would only gum things up. Unless the bill is called up by mid-June, which is right now, the chance that it will be discussed at this session of congress is slim."

The newspaper charges that the Democratic policy committee "has been guilty of an unpatriotic sidestepping of its duty, because the future of the nation is endangered by the things the Warren court has been doing to U.S. rights and practices."

Among the recent decisions of the Supreme Court that have come in for severe condemnation by lawyers throughout the country are rulings that anti-sedition laws passed by 42 states cannot be applied to subversion unless congress says so, and that persons who are communists are eligible to practice law in any state, despite the laws of the states which forbid this. The Supreme Court has released dozens of communists on technical points and, as the "Daily News" says, the net result of the long string of court decisions is that "it is harder than ever before for the government to combat the red conspiracy to overthrow that same government and make slaves of all Americans except reds."

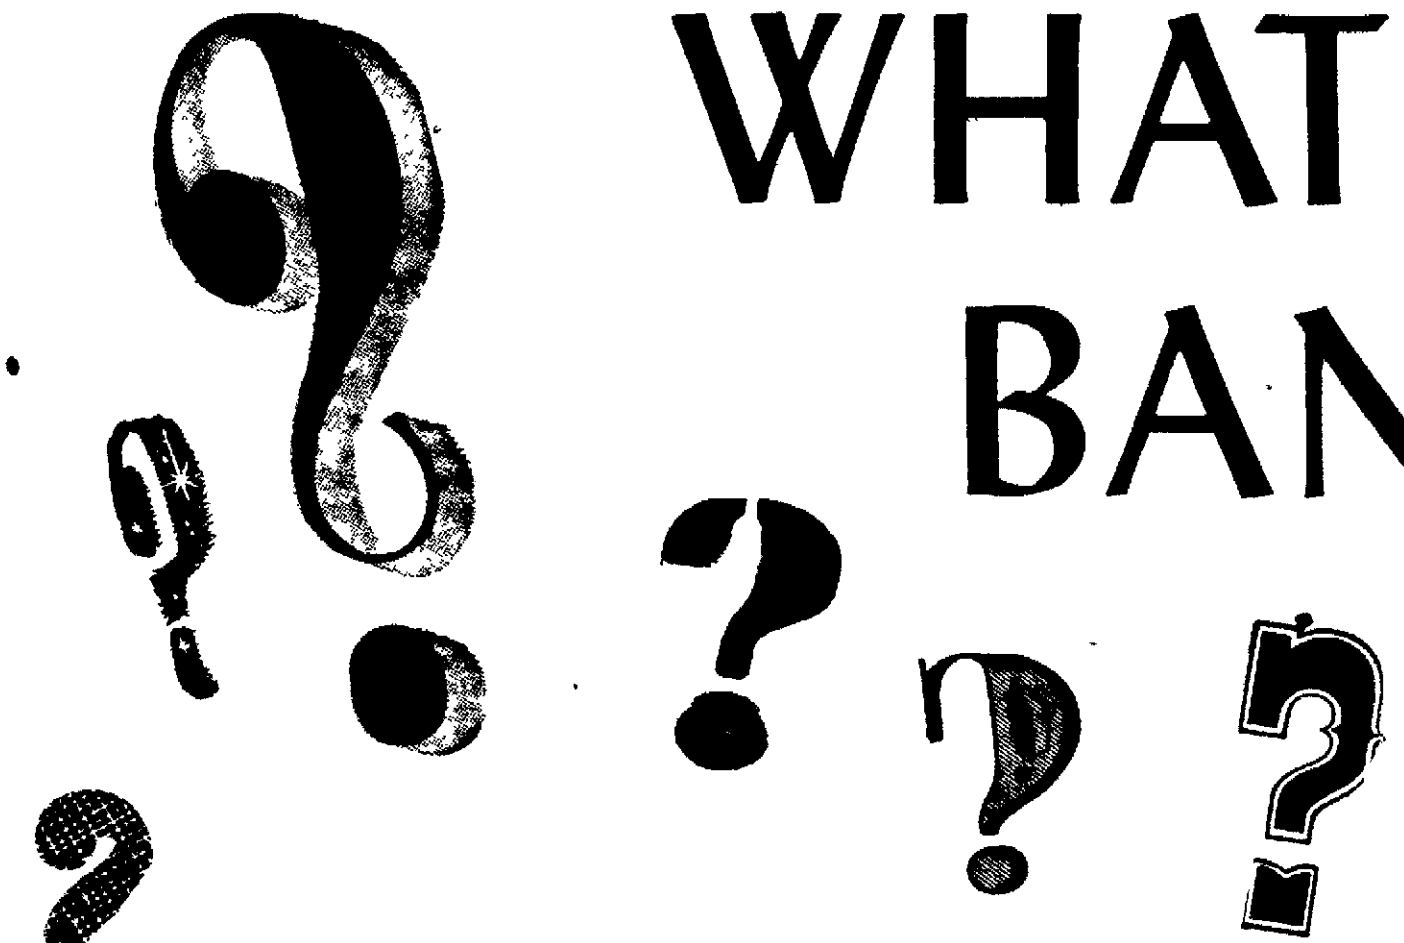

The editorial goes on to say that, by releasing a confessed rapist because the police held him for seven hours' conversation with them prior to his formal arraignment before a magistrate, the Supreme Court has confused police and prosecutors all over the country and has "enabled gangsters and other hardened criminals to thumb their noses frequently at the law."

What can be done about it? The congress has before it the bill sponsored by Sen. Butler of Maryland and Sen. Jenner of Indiana, both Republicans. Provisions of this measure would, if enacted, strengthen the Smith act so as to prevent members of communist organizations from preaching treason and taking steps to overthrow our government. The proposed law would keep the Supreme Court from telling the states whom they might admit to the bar and would give legal sanction to the rights of the states to deal with sedition and subversion.

It is not a question of impairing the powers of the court as an institution, but of asserting the rights of congress as granted by the constitution itself. The big issue is whether the 85th congress will surrender its rights.

JUST EXACTLY- WHAT IS A BANK?

A bank is technically a respository for money. It is a chartered and incorporated institution established to receive and safeguard money . . . to invest that money . . . and to act as agent in the transfer of funds from one source to another.

It is, in a sense, not unlike a department store. But instead of dealing in commodities, a bank deals in money.

To facilitate its money transactions, your bank divides its services into departments — with each department responsible for a specific kind of financial transaction.

Your bank has many such departments, falling into general categories of savings and checking accounts, loans, and specialized departments which offer such services as money orders, travelers checks, drafts and safe deposit boxes.

What is a bank?

To a community, it's a partner in progress and stability; to business it's a partner in growth and expansions, and to a housewife, it's a partner in convenience and money management.

Your own definition of a bank depends, we suggest, upon how you use your bank. But whatever your definition . . . you can look upon your bank primarily as a good friend.

Culbertson on Bridge

By Ely Culbertson

Beyond question or doubt, the standard of card-play, offensive and defensive, has improved substantially during the past 10 to 15 years, but there is still no basis for smugness. Take the hand below for example.

This deal came up in a total-point team-of-four contest, and the bidding went exactly the same at both tables:

North	East	South	West
1 C	Pass	1 S	Pass
2 C	Pass	3 N T	Pass

The play also went in the same way: fourth-highest diamond lead by West, ducked in dummy, with East putting in the jack and South winning with the queen. Then, since club establishment was obviously the right line, both declarers led and passed the club jack. Both Easts won with the queen and returned the diamond three — and both declarers bit the dust, the defense getting three diamond tricks and two clubs.

"Gosh," said both declarers, in effect. "Imagine not being able to make three no trump with 28 high-card points in the combined hands and with every suit stopped at least twice!" It was understandable that they should have been astonished, but their use of the phrase "not being able to make" was a little out of order! Though both were far better than average bridge players, they missed out badly in the play of this hand.

The right play, particularly at total-point bridge, was to duck the opening lead in both hands, letting East hold the trick with the diamond jack. It was fully evident that West had the diamond king, and so, by keeping the Q-10, South would still have two stoppers. Let East continue with the diamond three if he wished. Declarer would win in one hand or the other, enter his hand (if necessary) in hearts, and let the club jack ride — but note the difference! East would have no more diamonds to return, and if he did have, the suit would carry no menace.

Beauty is simplicity. May that never be forgotten by the bride when she chooses jewelry for herself and for her bridesmaids to wear on the very special day, her wedding day. Actually, very little need be said concerning the bride's jewelry for this reason. It may, in fact, if an aura of simple regality and good taste is desired.

Let the bride be the most important, sparkling gem at her wedding. She can do this easily by choosing the very plain and almost unobtrusive pieces of jewelry. Her bridal gown, swathing her in white freshness and beauty, topped with the ethereal-like veil is alone a vision not soon forgotten. Gaudy "Gems" Taboo Bright and brassy bangles and other costume jewelry is gaudy and entirely uncalled for, and does not add to the picture of the bride. The very word "costume" implies a kind of pretense and certainly nothing about the wedding ceremony approaches this. It is true and real and so is the jewelry, we hope. If it is not real it can compensate by being simple. The effect will be lovely. Abandon your rhinestones and polish up that precious diamond of yours! It is done with a little warm water, soap suds and a dash of ammonia. A strand of small pearls at the neck is always dainty and becoming; far more so than the heavy, thicker necklaces which often tend to give your neck the appearance of being shorter than it is. Instead, let yourself show off your accessories, not they, you. It is much more agreeable to hear that you look attractive in a dress, rather than "what a lovely dress." You are the one being admired. Big, bold bracelets are nice, but not at a wedding. In addition to being out of place, they can catch in your fragile gloves and detract from your carefully selected bridal bouquet. Add Dainty Earrings Many people do not feel fully "dressed up" until they have added earrings to their apparel, and this is understandable. But brides, keep them small and delicate so they will not draw the attention away from your glowing face and radiant smile. Again, pearls top the list. Your wedding can be given even more meaning by wearing jewelry given to you by your mother, grandmother, or perhaps your new mother-in-law. Its sentimental value can give you additional joy as a bride. Certainly the bridesmaids' jewelry should be the choice of the bride in conjunction with the dresses, and should blend in gracefully with the gowns, like the bride and her embellishments, be elegant but simple and sincere.

Your Problems Match-Mate Mom Mixed on Marriage; Makes Major Mess

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN: I married too young, without knowing what love was all about. My mother picked out the man and said he'd make a wonderful husband. She persuaded me I'd learn to love him later, and that I should settle for "security" and be happy not to have money worries for the rest of my life.

spouse Number Two is no improvement over Number One. Spend some of that energy on your husband, Tools, instead of ducking around the corner with someone else's.

DEAR ANN: I'm an ex-serviceman, 25 years of age and still living at home. My mother always fought with the neighbors and we've belonged to three Protestant churches because she has arguments with the ministers. If she can't find anything wrong with the sermon, she picks on his wife, or the choir-master.

During the Korean War I enlisted but never went overseas. I accidentally dropped an adding machine on my foot and broke three toes. My mother had it put in the hometown paper that I received the purple heart.

I'm so fed up on her stories I'm a wreck. I don't know what she's going to tell next. I've told her I want to move out of the house and get off on my own, but she says if I do she'll have a nervous breakdown and it will be all my fault. What shall I do? — CLAUDE

If you DON'T move out, Claude, you'll have a nervous breakdown and it will be all her fault.

Paddle your own canoe, Son. You're long overdue. Remaining at home won't insure your mother's emotional stability but moving out may do a lot for you. It sounds as if she went off the deep end a long time ago.

DEAR ANN: Twice in the last month you've printed letters which have dealt with problems similar to those of our immediate family. The strange thing about the letters is they were signed with the correct initials of the people involved. To my knowledge no one in our family has written to you.

I realize this could be sheer coincidence, but several of our friends have phoned to ask why we had the poor judgment to sign correct initials to problems of such personal nature.

Since this has happened to us twice, I'm sure it must have happened to others. I wonder if you could avoid embarrassment by substituting fictitious

Now, 10 years later I have two children, a beautiful home, a closet full of clothes—and an aching heart. I met a man who also married the wrong one.

We've been meeting in little out of the way places and stealing our moments of heaven. But this is no way to live. Both of us are moral people. We don't want to hurt our families. Yet the pull is so strong we can't stay away from each other.

We live in a small town and I'm afraid one day we'll be found out. According to all the rules it's wrong, but what shall I tell my heart? — C.G.

If you continue to meet this man in "little out of the way places" sooner or later someone will tell your husband, — then it won't much matter what you tell your heart.

When you said "this is no way to live"—you said a mouthful. The world is full of people who think they married the wrong one. But after they make the Big Switch and drag themselves and their children through the divorce courts, they frequently find

Youth Programs
Best overall deterrent to delinquency is development of activities and recreation programs for youngsters, Chief Hendricks said. He viewed such programs as means of directing youthful energy into wholesome channels.

Praising Appleton for its low youth crime rate, Hendricks noted that of 195 juveniles processed at the police station in 1957, only 17 cases were judged serious enough for court action.

Hendricks explained organization and operation of the police department, particularly in the identification and detective bureaus. He said the detective staff will be increased to five men within a few months.

Although its quarters are adequate for the present, the department is becoming cramped and soon will be looking for additional facilities, Hendricks revealed. With 53 members, the force is one short of full strength, the chief stated. Another man will be added soon, he said.

Discussing occasional complaints about abruptness and lack of courtesy on the part of policemen, the chief promised that change will soon be evident.

Yet it has been a lesson to watch the operation all the same, because of its toughly professional character, and because, in all this long, grueling cause, I never heard more than a word of sardonically joking complaint from the men who must do this sort of thing day after day and week and week after week, until their service ends.

At the St. Louis municipal opera he'll appear in "Roberta" as band leader Huckleberry Haines, a role he created 25 years ago on Broadway. The star.

French Army Hunts Men In Algerian Mountains

Existence Is Dreary for Members Involved in Never-Ending Search

BY JOSEPH ALSOP

Bordj Menaiel, Algeria — On the young major's face, the day's events had incised deep lines. They were not lines of fatigue, for he was climbing the steep mountain side in the cruel late afternoon sun like a particularly wiry and heat-proof goat. They were lines of disappointment.

J. Alsop

"Hunting fellaghas," he remarked, "is like hunting wild boar. You organize a magnificent battle, and you can still have a blank day, like today. With fewer beaters, you may get a big bag. In one day and in one operation last week, we got 80 of them."

Like Hunting Camp

The major's somber remarks are a good operational summary of the grand battle in the forest of Tamedjout, in the high mountains of the Kabyle country, which this reporter saw as the guest of the second battalion of the ninth regiment of infantry. An operation without casualties except from sunstroke (of which there were several) may seem a little un-dramatic. But the story of the day will at least give an idea of how the French army in Algeria carries on its unending hunt.

Dinner last night in the little officers' mess here in Bordj Menaiel was like an evening meal in a hunting camp. The talk was of past hunts, unsuccessful and successful, with enough stories of the latter to make it clear the fellagha did not lead an easy life. A little Indochinese war orphan, who was brought to the mess by the old captain who had adopted him, wanted to offer his usual after-dinner entertainment—the French manual of arms performed by a smiling 5-year-old. But take-off hour was 1:30 in the morning so the usual entertainment was tenderly cut short.

Four hours' sleep, a quick wash and shave (for the officers of the infantry marine are not sloppy in the field), coffee and bread hastily gulped down—and then the battalion column forms with the ease of long practice, and with no light to show the men and vehicles their places except the curious, milky luminescence of the soft Algerian night.

Maps are checked. The major in command coordinates times, places, telephone codes and all the rest with his hard-bitten looking company officers. The companies set out, each in single file, through the gnarled olive and fig trees on the steep mountain flanks. It is a long, grim breathless climb, even to the first battalion command post.

Contorted Field

These are the mountains that gave birth to Krim Bel Kacem, one of the high command of the F. L. N. The forest of Tamedjout, more scrub than forest, lies in a violently contorted fold of these mountains, with a drop sharply downwards to a water course a full 400 meters below the C. P.'s crest.

Our battalion companies today are the hunters. Three more battalions, starting from other crests, are the beaters in this hunt. By 8 o'clock in the morning the net is closed, the link-up is complete. So we of the C. P. make the long march to our forward final position, sweating under a sun already terrible, and thinking guiltily of the companies that cannot halt, as we shall halt.

That, really, is the whole day's story. But all day long under a sun ever gaining in cruel intensity the net is methodically drawn tighter and tighter. Lajoie (the colonel in overall command), Lamouette (our own commander) and the other battalion C. P.s keep up an endless, tense radio conversation with one another and with their companies to make sure there are no holes in the ever-tightening net.

So the long day passes, with thirst growing always more obsessive, with the sun heating down more and more remorselessly, with the hunters and the beaters toiling onwards. But the fellagha band that usually hides out in the forest of Tamedjout

He also suggested that all the people who seem interested in referendum voting, should get a referendum vote, on a sales tax. "This kind of legislation affects all working class people and I feel sure this referendum would also get voted down by the people if they had a chance to voice their choice."

Labor council officers urged the union delegates to stress at future union meetings that safety on a vacation is a necessary part of equipment.

It was under Leistikow's leadership as superintendent of the school system here that the Winneconne school became integrated with over 20 other school districts into one large system that served as a model for study by other districts considering consolidation.

The Winneconne community school district also served as a model for study by school officials in other states and countries and the subject of articles in national educational and farm magazines.

Leistikow came to Winneconne in 1927, shortly after his graduation from Macalester college at St. Paul, Minn., and headed the expanding school district until 1955 when he resigned. He came as a social studies teacher and became principal in 1935.

Agent Suggests Ways for Carrying Food to Picnics

Oshkosh — "Keep hot foods hot and cold foods cold for a successful picnic," advises Miss Lois Klusmeyer, county home agent. Soft protein foods such as cooked meats, poultry and fish should be cared for properly. Soft custard, cream-filled pastries or cakes, cream salad dressing, stuffed eggs and egg salads also will spoil quickly.

Thermos jugs and picnic coolers will help to hold some foods at the temperatures desired. If you plan to eat immediately and the picnic area is only a short distance away, wrapping the hot dish in newspaper or carrying food in a portable roaster will keep it hot.

If the food has to be kept for a long time, try taking foods that can be cooked in aluminum foil. A good combination is a potato, onion and carrot slices placed over a hamburger patty with each serving wrapped in freezer foil or two layers of kitchen foil. Chill the packages until leaving for the picnic and then carry them in insulated bags. Bake the foil packages on coals for 15 to 20 minutes, depending on the fire.

Ham, pineapple and sweet potato slices fixed in individual servings also are good in aluminum foil. The home agent advises preparing food in foil and then freezing to keep the food cooler much longer after taken from the freezer.

A New Direction in Housing Predicted in Magazine Article

Neenah — A young sales trainee employed by one of the largest manufacturers of houses recently completed an intensive training course and emerged from the experience with an awesome regard for his product. "After a couple of months," he said, "you start wondering what's the matter with people that they aren't all buying prefabricated houses."

Although not even most people are buying them, there is nothing wrong with either the factory-produced house or the public that a little more time and education will not correct. Less than 10 per cent of the houses built last year were produced by prefabrication companies. But, discouraging statistics aside, nearly all architects and engineers who deserve a hearing are confident that the time is fast approaching when most Americans will be living in houses built on industrial assembly lines.

The experts think this prediction will come true simply because it must. Until now, the single family dwelling has represented the last essential product in American life that has not yielded to the genius of mass production technology. The average house consists of between 30 and 40 thousand parts; it may be held together by as many as a half ton of nails, all laboriously driven in place by strong-armed carpenters. To assemble the thousands of parts into a finished house takes anywhere from three months to 18 months of digging, bricklaying, hammering, sawing, pipefitting, plastering and painting.

Plainly, unless the finished product is an architectural gem, all this arduous toil is uneconomical, undesirable and, from the time-motion engineer's point of view, un-American. Any observer scanning row upon row of conventionally built tract houses must concede that the structural and architectural qualities are not so impressive as to warrant saving an archaic building system.

There can be little doubt today that the complex job of putting together the components of a house is more logically suited to the remarkable machines in the industrial plant than to the carpenter's saw on the raw, bulldozed site. But the optimism of house manufacturers is not based on construction advantages alone. Design has at last found its place in the prefabrication industry. Last year, for instance, it was important national news when the announcement was made that a prefabricated house had been designed by the most famous of all living architects, Frank Lloyd Wright. The major manufacturers of houses now retain important architects to give them models that not only satisfy the manifold needs of family living but also meet the sterner test of aesthetic distinction.

Such has been the recent influence of the architect in mass-produced housing that even the smallest builders of conventional houses are seeking to avoid the ugly excesses that have marked many of the development houses of the post-war years. Says House and Home Magazine, an important voice in the housing industry, "The prefab industry is not only pointing the way but also forcing its chief competitors—the on-site builders—to raise their sights, and to raise them fast."

Unfortunately, words like "prefab" and "prefabrication" do grievous harm to the cause of factory-produced houses. The prefabricated house of today has succeeded on the strength of its high quality. Yet the prejudice widely persists that the term "prefabrication" is a synonym for "cheapness." Countless efforts have been made to find a better description of factory-made houses, thereby disassociating them from the early jerry-built product. Pragmatists, however, accept the prefabric label and regard it as a badge of honor.

Where is the factory-produced house going from here? A few critics say that while the pre-assembly of components under one roof has produced significant savings in man-hours and materials, the industry hasn't yet introduced any basic new housing ideas. A wall still

No More Rabbits, Pleads Foundation For Junior Blind

Los Angeles —(P)— An urgent plea to halt a veritable flood of rabbits has been sounded by the Foundation for the Junior Blind.

A week ago, the foundation appealed for pets of any kind for the blind children. On the first day, the phone rang for 12 hours without pause.

To date, 2,345 rabbits, 1,818 ducks, 687 chickens, 351 guinea pigs, 216 mice, 68 hamsters, 18 possums, 54 turtles and even 2 boa constrictors have been among the offerings.

Needless to say, the foundation has been unable to accept all the pets, but would like some ponies or horses.

"But please, no more rabbits," said Norman Kaplan, executive director.

Kaplan said the response of a blind child to a ride on a gentle pony "is a kind of release, like being air-borne."

Menasha — The Lenz-Gazecki Junior Legion nine will go after its third straight Fox River Valley Junior Legion league win when it entertains Fondy du Lac at 8 o'clock tonight at the Menasha ball park. It will be Menasha's first home test of the season.

Both teams take perfect 2-0 records into this evening's test. They are involved in a four-way tie for the lead along with Green Bay and Oshkosh.

The Lenz-Gazecki post turned out Appleton 11-7 and Little Chute 9-5 while Fondy trimmed Little Chute 10-1 and Mayville 6-0.

Record Total of 104 Golfers Enter Meet

Fox Cities Test Begins Saturday

BY JOHN L. PAUSTIAN
Post-Crescent Sports Editor

A record-fracturing total of 104 golfers has registered for the fifth annual Fox Cities Amateur Golf tournament, which will be played Saturday and Sunday.

The mammoth field — exceeding the next largest in tournament history by more than 30 golfers — was rounded out Monday with the receipt of Saturday's mail entries.

Begins Saturday
Firing for the individual crown now worn by Don Strutz and the team title now held by Neenah Ridgeway will begin Saturday at Neenah Bridge-wood. The concluding 18 holes of the half of the 36-hole medal tourney — which again is under the Post-Crescent's auspices — will be played Sunday at Appleton Butte des Morts.

Tee-off times will be published in Wednesday's edition of the Post-Crescent.

A bumper crop of tourney newcomers joined the 14 best composite scorers in the tourney's history and most of the other old favorites to swell this year's total.

Muni Ridgeway Lead
Last year, 73 signed up for the tourney, and 89 of them played. Both were record highs at the time.

With six clubs or courses qualifying the minimum number of men (5), the best scrap for team honors in the tourney's history is in prospect. Last year, only four clubs had enough players to enter the team race.

Appleton Municipal, with 39 affiliates, again has the organizational high on this year's tourney roster. Neenah Ridgeway has 17 entrants to lead all private clubs and place second overall.

Other team totals are Bridge-wood, 16; Kaukauna Fox Valley, 13; BDM, 11 and Appleton Riverview, 5. Menasha North Shore is the only area club which missed qualifying for the team race.

Latest Entrants Listed
In the team race, the cards of the five lowest-scoring individual are counted.

All three past individual champions are in the field. They are Don Strutz (1956, 1957), Herb Stinski (1954) and Don Jabas (1955).

Four of the five golfers who helped give Ridgeway the team laurels last year are back. They

Yanks' Slump Figures To Perk Up the Gate

New York, Still Leading by 7 Games, Moves Into Cleveland Tonight, Meets Detroit Next

By The Associated Press
Are those New York Yankees ready to be had? Or is that 4-game losing string the champs are dragging just another booby trap ready to explode as they open their second tour of the American league's western division?

Either way, that slump figures to perk up the gate as the Yankees move into Cleveland for a 3-game set starting tonight, then move on for a 3-by winning six of seven under game series at Detroit at new manager Bill Norman's week end.

Playing .500 Ball
The Indians riding a 4-game streak for only the second time this season have picked Ray Naleski (8-4) for the opener against Yankee southpaw 'Whuck' Ford (7-2), whom they haven't beaten in more than two years.

The Yankees still leading the league by seven games and in the cellar after Sunday's tough losing nine of their last shutout sweep by Chicago, is at 15 and playing only 500 ball for Kansas City with 'Hec' Brown 18 June games carry a rare (1-0) opposing Ray Herbert (2-19-inning scoreless string into 1) of the third place A's.

Cardinals Trip Cincinnati, 6-5, In 11 Innings

Morrie Martin Gets Decision In Relief Role

By The Associated Press
The St. Louis Cardinals are still doing it the hard way in their scrap for the National league pennant. They've won 12 of their last 19 games and six victories have come in extra innings.

They moved back to .500 and a fourth-place tie by beating Cincinnati, 6-5, in 11 innings Monday night, scoring a pair in the ninth to force the overtime. It was the only game scheduled in the majors yesterday, and left the Cardinals tied with Pittsburgh, half a game behind the Redlegs.

Kasko Doubles
Stan Musial made a hairline crack in his slump with a single that got the ninth-inning rally under way for a 3-3 tie. Eddie Kasko's double scored two to cap a 3-run eleventh.

Wilmer 'Vinegar Bend' Mizell had a 1-hit shutout for five innings, then was touched for one earned run in a 3-run Redleg sixth. That's the way it stood until the ninth, when the Cards got to southpaw Joe Nuxhall with Musial's first hit in 20 at-bats, Ken Boyer's single, a forceout and a walk that loaded the bases. Then Joe Cunningham delivered a 2-run pinch single.

In the eleventh, Cunningham singled and Don Blasingame's single brought him home after a walk. Kasko then counted the clinchers off loser Tom Acker (0-2), just enough to cushion a 2-run homer by Gus Bell in the Redleg eleventh. Morrie Martin won it for a 3-1 record — his second victory in three extra-inning sessions with the Redlegs.

Bluejays Rally To Beat Bees

Score Four in Eighth to Pocket 8-5 Triumph

By The Associated Press
It was a big day for the big inning in Wisconsin Monday as that state's pair of Three-I league teams won the only two games played.

Fox Cities' heroics consisted of a 4-run rally in the ninth inning that produced an 8-7 victory over Cedar Rapids.

Green Bay hit Burlington with a 4-tally spurge in the eighth to win, 8-5. Gene Wallace's 2-run triple and Wade Arnold's 2-run double were the big blows.

Ralph Holding, a bonus catcher from Stanford university making his league debut, and manager Walt Dixon homered for Burlington, which couldn't hold a 5-1 lead it piled up in the first three innings.

League-leading Davenport's game at Rochester was rained out.

Clifford Ann Creed Medalist in U. S. Collegiate Meet
Ames, Iowa.—The Women's National Collegiate Golf tournament went into match play today with Clifford Ann Creed, a 19-year-old Southern star, and National Amateur champion Joanne Gunderson heading the respective brackets.

Clifford Ann an Opelousas, La. girl who is a sophomore at Lamar Tech, Beaumont, Texas, took over the No. 1 spot in the upper bracket by winning medalist honors with a 2-over-par 75 for the Iowa State course. Her first round opponent was Jean Ashley of the University of Kansas who had a qualifying 85.

Miss Gunderson, the tall lass from Kirkland, Wash., who is an Arizona State freshman, headed the lower bracket as a result of her 76. She was matched with Karen Schull of Miami (Fla.) university, an 85 shooter Monday.

Braves Open Home Stand Against Cubs

League Leaders Will Start Burdette Against Drabowski

Milwaukee—The Milwaukee Braves, leading the National league by 14 games, meet the Chicago Cubs tonight in the start of a 21-game home stand.

Lew Burdette who failed to finish eight of his last nine starts, will see whether a game at home can restore his pitching craft. The triple victor of the 1937 World Series has won four and lost four decisions this season.

The Cubs are expected to start Moe Drabowski, a strong right-hander who has won six and lost four.

Although the Braves had to struggle to win half of their games on the recent road tour, they gained 34 games and replaced the San Francisco Giants as the league leaders. The Braves were trailing the Giants by two games when they left Milwaukee May 29.

Giants Drop 12 of 17
The Giants, deflated by Willie Mays' sagging average, lost 12 of 17 games while the Braves own eight and lost eight.

The Braves still need some hitting to make up for the absence of left fielder Wes Covington, whose .340 average is the highest on the club. Wes has been nursing his injured right knee for the past week, hoping surgery will not be necessary.

Harry Hanebrink, who hit a game-winning homer at St. Louis Sunday is trying to doctor his .174 batting average while he fills in for the ailing outfielder.

The Braves' batting stalwart in Covington's absence has been shortstop Johnny Logan. Logan collected nine hits in 16 times at bat as the Braves won four of their last five games on the road.

Union Will Sponsor Tilt Tonight

BY JOHN L. PAUSTIAN
Post-Crescent Sports Editor

Breathes there a fan with soul so dead who never to himself has said: "Man, what a ball game!"

The 8-7 win scored by the Fox Cities over Cedar Rapids Monday night was indeed one to inspire such philosophizing.

Wild Ninth Inning
The unremitting Foxes climaxed a week-long victory binge by pulling out a suspenseful decision with four runs in as wild a ninth inning as the Goodland ball orchard has seen in many years.

Bob Van Dyke's 2-out, bases-loaded fly ball to right eluded Bob Knoop for the hit that broke a 7-7 tie and sent 1,003 fans home tired but happy. It was the third time in 13 home victories that Van Dyke has delivered the decisive run in late innings.

The victory, second in a row and seventh in their last eight games, moves the Foxes within a half game of fourth-place Cedar Rapids and within one game of the first division.

Having mastered Rochester and Cedar Rapids in their last pair of 4-game series, the Foxes tonight will try to take the sting out of the fast-moving Burlington Bees in the starter of another 4-game set at Goodland field.

Tonight's battle between the two hottest teams in the league will be the season's second booster game. The sponsor this time is the George Walter Brewing company union. The Bees' sizzling pace of the last three weeks has moved them from last place all the way to second.

Dibelius Starts Rally
The turbulent last of the ninth, which began with the Raiders on top, 7-4, had the "Ladies Night" rosters chewing their nails and the rival managers taking frequent looks at their masterminding manuals.

Manasha's Ron Dibelius who had gone hitless in the first four trips of his second full game of pro ball, began the uprising by lacing a single to left.

Jim Niswonger struck out, but "Chick" Payne walked and Billy Bone stroked his first hit.

'Big Newk' Takes His Trade in Good Humor

Denies 'Campy's' Loss Caused His Current Slump

Los Angeles—(AP)—Big league baseball is a bittersweet business. And Don Newcombe was trying mightily today to digest a big bite off the bitter end with grace and good humor.

"I wasn't doing the club any good at all and they had to try to help themselves," the big fellow with the elaborate and graceful windup observed just before taking off for Cincinnati.

Almon '9' Trips Caroline, 8 to 7

Caroline — Almon defeated Caroline, 8-7, in a BABA East-West division game Sunday which saw the losers pass the winners in circuit standings. Gene Wood went the route to pick up the win, the loser was Ken Wolf who suffered his first defeat in four starts.

Caroline reliever Mike Niemuth hurled the last three innings and was touched for just one hit, by Maahs in the ninth, but the blow decided the game. McHugh had 5-for-5 and "Whitey" Brichtenfelt joined 4-for-5 for the losers.

that happen in baseball," Big Newk said of the Sunday night trade that sends him from Los Angeles to Cincinnati in exchange for Steve Bilko, Johnny Klippstein and Charlie Rabe.

"But I'm going to pitch baseball for Cincinnati. I don't think they expect miracles. They must have some confidence in me because they gave up a lot of people to get me."

Newcombe was voted the National league's most valuable player in 1956 after a magnificent 27-7 season.

It was in 1948 that Newcombe broke into organized ball at Nashua, N. H., with another great Negro player, Roy Campanella.

Don was asked whether the loss of Campy — paralyzed this spring in an auto accident — might have contributed to his 0-6 record this year.

"Campy had nothing to do with it," Don said. "I miss Campanella more than anybody because I roomed with him for many years. But the trouble was my shoulder. I pulled a muscle in it at San Francisco at the start of the season. I never did completely recover, but the pain is gone now."

Ryff Triumphs, But Writers All Pick Tibbs

New York — "Now you know why I have so many losses on my record," Tommy Tibbs said shortly after his forty-sixth defeat Monday night.

The squat Bostonian who has won 43, dropped a narrow but unanimous 10-round decision to Frankie Ryff of New York in a television fight at St. Nicholas arena.

All 10 boxing writers at ringside had the 5-foot, 4-inch underdog the winner. The AP card had Tibbs in front, 7-3.

The three officials, whose votes count, had the counter-punching Ryff ahead by the following scores: Referee Ray Miller, 5-4-1, Judge Tony Castellano, 6-4, and Judge Mike Davidowitz 5-5 in rounds but 6-5 for Ryff in points.

A low left in the eighth cost Tibbs the round and probably the fight. He had been warned in the fourth for a below-the-belt punch.

The pro-Ryff fans were happy their Bronx boy won his fifth straight decision to make his record 26-5.

Logan Prefers County Stadium Despite Lower Home Average

Milwaukee — Shortstop Johnny Logan of the Milwaukee Braves prefers to bat in County stadium, although records show he hits better on the road.

"I love it here," Johnny says. "There's something about those big crowds that get you. Even though a fellow's average may suffer playing at the Stadium, I'd rather be out there playing before all those fans."

Batting before Milwaukee fans this season, Logan managed to hit only 24 per cent of the time. This compares with his .327 average on 37 hits in 113 times at bat in other National League parks this season.

Results Count Logan comments. "I've discovered after five or six years in the big leagues that a guy's average isn't all-important. It's the results that count — winning the ball game, getting the key bunt, advancing a team-

Committee Studies Problem

1st State-Wide Recreational Boating Law Is Likely to be Cautious One

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison — This state's first state-wide recreational boating law is likely to be a mild and cautious one, in the beginning, according to members of a legislative committee studying problems of boating regulation.

Assemblyman Clemens of Waukesha county has reported to the legislative council the results of studies and hearings by the group on the demands for some form of state legislation to cover the rapidly growing boat traffic on Wisconsin rivers and lakes.

Clemens said the committee is agreed that some form of a boat registration on a state basis is needed, largely as a means of identification for the enforcement of existing local laws, but that there appears to be substantial opposition to any form of state licensing for revenue. Boat men are suspicious of the licensing concept as a disguise for taxation of their property and their pleasure, he said.

Preparing Report The committee which has held a series of public hearings is preparing a report with recommendations for the 1959 legislature that will convene next January.

Clemens said the committee is aware of the need for laws governing boat safety and the resolution of the conflicts of interest in recreational water use between boatmen, water ski enthusiasts, riparian owners, fishermen, hunters and others, but is not yet sure how such regulatory authority should be apportioned between state and local governments.

Some degree of local responsibility and power in the field should be preserved, he said. He remarked also that the group does not intend to consider the matter of local licensing regulations — denounced by various sportsmen's groups — until the courts resolve the validity of such local ordinances in a test case now being prepared by the office of the state attorney general.

Hoad's loss juggled the standings for the $3,000 first prize in Jack Kramer's tourney. Hoad's 2-1 record trails the perfect 2-0 records of Gonzales and another Aussie, Irvy Ken Rosewall. Play continues through Sunday.

Royals' Maurice Stokes Still Conscious Only Part of the Time

Cincinnati — Maurice Stokes, star rebounder for the Cincinnati Royals of the NBA, observed his 25th birthday today — still conscious only at times as the result of encephalitis.

This was Stokes' ninety-fifth day in St. Elizabeth hospital in nearby Covington, Ky. He was stricken late in the 1957-58 basketball season.

Royals officials said Stokes is conscious part of the time and is able to recognize friends and shakes his head in answer to questions — but still can't speak.

Stokes, a native of Pittsburgh, was an outstanding former for the Royals. Physicians have given no indication as to his future recovery prospects.

Trabert Beats Ailing Hoad In Tourney

Forest Hills, N. Y. — Lew Hoad's hope of dethroning pro tennis king "Pancho" Gonzales in the $15,000 Tournament of Champions today was jolted by a new injury—a sore leg muscle that cuts his court speed.

"Lew couldn't run properly," apologized Tony Trabert Monday night after upsetting Hoad, 2-6, 6-3, 6-2, in the round-robin event. "It's tough enough to run on that grass without a bad leg."

Hoad insists the new injury is not related to the sciatica that deadened his right leg during his recent barnstorming tour against Gonzales.

Hoad's loss juggled the standings for the $3,000 first prize in Jack Kramer's tourney. Hoad's 2-1 record trails the perfect 2-0 records of Gonzales and another Aussie, Irvy Ken Rosewall. Play continues through Sunday.

Ashley Cooper May be Out of 'Wimbledon'

London — Ashley Cooper began a race today to see if he can become fit for the Wimbledon tennis championships beginning Monday.

The big Australian, 5-2 favorite for the men's singles championship at Wimbledon, was forced to scratch Monday from singles play in the Queens club championships.

A torn muscle in his right thigh was so bothersome during a winning match against John Cranston of San Marino, Calif., that Cooper underwent an hour and a half medical examination.

A London specialist said Cooper should drop out of the singles but might be able to continue doubles.

Queens is the top-ranking tuneup tournament for Wimbledon.

Crash Kills Ex-Winneconne School Head

neconne became one of the first school systems to transport rural high school students. He also was active in promoting the hot lunch program in schools, both at the Central school and at the outlying schools because so many of the rural children were unable to get home for their noon meals. Shortly after the 22 schools were consolidated into the community school district fire destroyed the Central school and it looked as if the new idea of consolidated schools might come to an end. Leistikow's work along with that of the school board held the system together during the trying days and classes were held wherever space might be found in homes, churches and the village hall.

His work at Winneconne was recognized by state and national educational organizations and he was one of four members selected from throughout the country to serve on the development committee of the cooperative program in educational administration of the American Association of School Administrators. The committee had been set up by a $30,000 gift from the late W. W. Kellogg.

On State Committees
He also had been appointed to a state committee to set up standards and eligibility for handicapped children, chairman of the local associations committee of the Wisconsin Education association, and chairman of the committee for teacher training of the Northwestern Wisconsin Education association.

On the occasion of his twenty-fifth year at Winneconne, he was honored at a testimonial dinner attended by over 400 persons. Speakers at that dinner reminisced over the untiring efforts of Leistikow for the school district and of his after-hours travels around the state to speak to groups considering school consolidation.

S. Oneida Bridge Plans Approved by Federal Agency

The federal government has approved city plans for the proposed $740,000 relocation of the S. Oneida street bridge.

A letter to the city today says Fred L. Johns, who is in charge of the corps of engineers' Appleton office, will serve as the government's inspector in charge.

The new span, the government notes, will provide 70 feet of horizontal clearance and 10 feet of vertical clearance. The present structure, completed in March, 1898, has 59.5 feet horizontal clearance and 5.16 feet vertical clearance.

The letter also comments on the amount of commercial traffic handled through the government's locks in Appleton. It says 131,127 tons of coal were pulled through the locks in 1956. There were 342 round trips by tugs and barges, it says. Commercial traffic is decreasing, the federal government points out, but the amount of recreational boating traffic is increasing. Construction of the new bridge is scheduled to start in fall, probably in October.

Catlin to Run For Assembly

3-Way Race Assured As Former Speaker Tries for Old Job

Mark S. Catlin, Jr., 47, Appleton attorney, 7-term veteran of the Wisconsin legislature and former speaker of the assembly, announced today he will seek the Republican nomination for the assembly in Outagamie county's first district.

A 3-way race for the GOP nomination thus is assured. Previously, Harold Froehlich, active in Young Republican circles and a student at the University of Wisconsin, and Chris Mullen, retired Appleton businessman, said they would seek the post.

The first district is composed of Appleton and the towns of Grand Chute and Center.

Catlin was in the assembly from 1937 to 1944 and was re-elected in 1948, 1952 and 1954. He was defeated by Fred H. Frank in 1956. Frank died in 1957 and the assembly post has been vacant since.

Catlin was Republican floor leader in the 1941, 1943 and 1953 sessions and was assembly speaker in 1955.

In announcing his plans, Catlin said, "I am a candidate... because I believe I can do the best job of representing our district in the legislature. I was born, reared and educated in Appleton. I have successfully handled every major legislative request made of me by the district. My colleagues in the legislature have honored me by electing me to every major post in the organization of the assembly. I believe the voters who have elected and reelected me seven times know that I have always conducted myself honestly and forthrightly in both my public and private life."

Large Wants Adams Fired

State Sen. Gerald D. Lorge, in a letter to President Eisenhower, has requested the firing of Presidential Aide Sherman Adams. Adams allegedly accepted expensive gifts from a Boston industrialist, Bernard Goldfine.

In his letter, Lorge stated, "It does matter that your aide put himself, our president, his political party and the next presidential candidate in a bad position. If he was given and accepted the gifts, the stigma attached to this sort of conduct is such that he should no longer be an employee of the United States government and, as one Republican to another, I do request that you release him from his duties by discharging him."

"It is important that an example be set by our highest office holder by ridding from your administration any and all people who place their integrity in a questionable position."

dren, a 10-year-old was with her and was slightly hurt. She tested .23 on the drunkometer. A reading of .15 is considered evidence of intoxication.

She also pleaded guilty of driving without a license and was fined $115 on the two counts, or 67 days in jail. She couldn't pay and Judge Oscar J. Schmiede gave her permission to work outside the jail and authorized the county welfare department to let her take care of her children. Her husband also is in jail.

Lemke was arrested May 11 after he ran off a town of Ellington road, knocked down four mail boxes, traveled across a plowed field and hit a tree. He denied the charge May 13 but changed his plea today. Lemke paid $141.95 fine and costs.

Arens was arrested by Kimberly police Friday after a motorist told them Arens' car had gone into the ditch three times between Stockbridge and Kimberly.

Kimberly Patrolman Donald Schneck said Arens was driving on the left side of the street in Kimberly and couldn't be stopped because he was weaving from right to left. When police finally stopped him, Arens put his car into reverse and smashed into the front end of the squad car causing $28 damage.

Judge Schmiede ordered him to pay for the damage and fined him $100. Arens tested .24 on the drunkometer.

Flare Tips

Firemen were called to N. Richmond street and W. Glendale avenue at 12:35 this morning to put out burning fuel oil from an overturned flare.

Around Home...

Cribbage luck came relatively early to Mrs. John McGinnis, 1324 N. Division street, who held her first perfect hand after two years at the game.

Her opponent, a 20-year devotee, has never held one nor even seen one before in any of his games.

Mrs. McGinnis had in her hand the five of diamonds, clubs and hearts with the jack of spades and drew the matching five of spades for a 29-count.

Excited and thrilled, Mrs. McGinnis is keeping her perfect hand intact for display with the names of witnesses to prove the rare achievement.

He was fined $10 for the muffler charge, $25 for driving 50 in a 25-mile zone, $15 for driving 40 in a 25-mile zone and $15 for ignoring a stop light. His point total for the three moving violations is 12, enough to cause Municipal Judge Oscar J. Schmiede to revoke his license for three months.

Previous Convictions

Cool Weather Will Linger, Forecast Says

This cool weather seems here to stay for 30 days at least. The weather bureau forecast today that the coolest area in the nation during the next 30 days will be the Great Lakes region. In a prediction covering mid-June to mid-July, the bureau said the outlook calls for temperatures below seasonal normals in the northeastern quarter of the nation with the coolest weather in the Great Lakes area. Subnormal amounts of rainfall are anticipated in the Great Lakes region and west of the Rocky mountains, the report indicated.

In Appleton the skies were clear. The highest temperature reached Monday was 72 degrees with the overnight low 48 degrees.

Other Readings
Monday's weather over Wisconsin was partly cloudy and rather cool. Temperatures stayed mostly in the low 70s except for Park Falls which had a high of 68. The warmest section was the Rockford-Beloit area with a high of 76 while Milwaukee and Madison had 75.

Other highs included 74 at Two Rivers and Grantsburg, 73 at La Crosse, 72 at Lone Rock, 71 at Green Bay, Wausau, Eau Claire and Superior. Showers moved into southwestern Wisconsin during the late afternoon and night but amounts were extremely light.

Speaker Says U. S. Goods Undersold By Foreign Firms

Foreign industries are able to compete with United States firms in many fields because of lower labor costs, Charles Dostal, Thilman Pulp and Paper company, said in a talk to the Y's men's club Monday night. Foreign aid helped other nations to rebuild their industry to where they can compete with the United States products despite tariff and shipping expenses, he declared. He stated that Japan is able to buy steel in the United States, ship it to Japan for manufacture, re-ship it to America and still undersell comparable U. S. products.

Because a German steel plant is able to manufacture wire at less than the cost of the same commodity in the United States, 64,000 tons of wire were imported by the United States last year, Dostal said.

He urged that U. S. firms increase productivity to compete with foreign imports.

Church Given Permission to Widen N. Drew

The First English Lutheran church Monday was given permission to widen N. Drew street along church property at church expense.

Street and sanitation committeemen were told the widening, all to be done along the west side of the street, would not interfere with eventual widening of the rest of the street.

The work, which would widen the street by 10 feet between the present street surface and the sidewalk line, will cost about $2,200. North Drew now is 29 feet wide. The 10-foot widening will cause removal of five trees.

Church leaders explained the section to be widened includes all of church frontage proper and the frontage of three houses on the north which the church also owns.

The city council will vote on the committee's action at 7:30 Wednesday night.

DEITY AND ME

Uncle Sam Should Not Have to Carry World's Economic Load

BY GEORGE SOKOLSKY

It would seem that Americans are obligated to drink coffee so that Brazil's economy will not go to the devil. Unfortunately the coffee-producing countries outpriced themselves and ingenious merchants developed all kinds of "instant" brands which provide more coffee per pound than the old-style coffee bean.

So now, an $8,000,000 fund has been established "for promoting coffee consumption and defending coffee economy." The fund will be built by charging 25 cents per sack as a surcharge by the exporting countries if the plan is ratified. This sounds like a public relations expert's idea of how to get a client and to do some work. What Brazil and the other coffee-growing countries need to remember is that nobody has to buy their coffee of maintaining the economy of and that Africa is exporting coffee to other countries. Why must our fee and except for connoisseurs citizens be taxed so that Canada of whom there are very few, da might be able to reduce tax-most coffees taste alike. Why must we drink coffee? The problem of maintaining so that Brazil's currency will prices for excess agricultural be on a par? Why does not Bra-products is having the reverse zil permit the development of effect of knocking down the value her natural resources, particu- of currencies in those coun- larsly oil, by expert foreign cap- ries which fail to recognize ital, as the United States was that the large consuming mar- developed by foreign capital in- ets are very few indeed. The our early years? United States, which is the larg- est consuming market for most goods, cannot carry the load for we do not do exactly what 80 every country even with the foreign countries want us to do, they will all go over to Soviet Russia. If that is so, we are was in Latin America and got already as defeated as Messrs spit upon, one of the factors in Khrushchev and Mikoyan say the outrageous conduct was we are and we had better take that this country did not buy a look at what is happening to the enough coffee, enough lead, tin our own economy, particularly and zinc and that we sold sur- to our hoard of gold at Fort 25 cents per sack as a sur- plus wheat and cotton. The Ca- Knox, too much of which is al- charge by the exporting coun- because we sell surplus wheat accounts. and want us to give the stuff Obviously, it is impossible for away free to NATO which is any one country, whether it is to use it in countries to the United States or Soviet Rus- sian, to carry on its shoulders the total economy of the hu- man race. Certainly the United States does not possess the re- serves to support the curren- cies of those countries where currencies are falling. If we have become unpopular in Bra- zil because the cruzeiro has dropped to unfortunate lows, it is just too bad. This country cannot support Brazil's curren- cy during a period of inflation in Brazil and depression here. If all that stands between Rom- an Catholic Brazil and atheistic Soviet Russia is the exchange rate of the cruzeiro (normally, 50 to the dollar, today 148 to the dollar), then the United States can do nothing about it but reinstitute the Monroe doc- trine and get ready for our de- fenses.

No Nationality Worry One of the great advantages enjoyed by the United States in its industrial and transportation development was that it never worried about the nationality of the money invested in this coun- try. We just went ahead.

The answer, it seems to me is a different one. During the exalted days of the Franklin D. Roosevelt administration and more recently during the Tru- man and Eisenhower adminis- trations, much of the world has reached the conclusion that do- mestic problems in their coun- tries can best be cured by leeching upon the United States. Officially, this has cost us about $60,000,000,000, unofficially, the figure is too enormous to es- timate. Once some countries realize that Uncle Sam is no longer an easy touch, they will develop adequate ability to take care of themselves as they did before the United States took on the burdens of the human race. They somehow managed to get along on their own. (Copyright, 1958)

Unions Spread Buying Mass Doctor Care

BY NORMAN WALKER

Washington — Labor unions pledged today to spread the mass purchase of doctor care for workers despite grow- ing objections from the medical profession.

Dr. Morris Brand of New York, president of the Ameri- can Labor Health association, charged that objections from medical groups were "moti- vated largely by economic rather than ethical principles."

He referred to criticism from the American Medical associa- tion (AMA) and state and local medical societies that mass purchase of medical care in- terposes a third party between doctor and patient.

Dr. Brand, head of the Sid- ney Hillman Health center of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers union, said in a state- ment prepared for the opening session of a 2-day labor health conference.

"Certain segments of the medical profession have been doing everything in their power to prevent the establishment of consumer and union sponsored prepaid group practice medical programs. Their activities take the form of coercion, social and professional ostracism, restric- tive legislation and other overt and covert acts. These activities by the medical politicians have been increasing."
